The Down Factory Store

www.downfactorystore.com

Thanks to our retail and "online" customers we are one of the largest resources for goose down comforters, pillows and featherbeds. Consumers that compare our quality and prices to those of department stores, discounters, catalogs and other web sites find that we are indeed unbeatable - and we guarantee that! Know the facts of down before you buy.

FACT: Down comes from the chest of the bird to keep it insulated from the weather. Feathers (those things with quills) come from the back of the bird to keep it dry. Down can cost as much as $10.00 an ounce, feathers 10¢ an ounce. Over 90% of down manufacturers find it to their advantage to add over 30% feathers to their down. It's like buying three pounds of ground sirloin and getting two pounds of meat and one pound of fat. You have paid for meat and got fat, it's the same with their down, they both do it because it's legal. We do not contaminate our down by adding feathers to it.

Comforters

KNOW THE FACTS BEFORE YOU BUY IT

FACT: Fill power, this is the amount the cubic inches filled by one ounce of down. Higher fill power means a higher quality down. You will find that as the quality of the down increases, so does the comfort & life of the item.

FACT: We use only high thread count, baffle box construction, 100% cotton covers on our down comforters & pillows. Down insulates by trapping air and holding in your body temperature, keeping you comfortable through the night. Low quality comforters are usually heavier because it takes more of an inferior down to fill a comforter. Inferior down becomes clumpy and it can't breath, resulting in your becoming over heated and uncomfortable. Our high quality down gives you the warmth and comfort without the weight.

FACT: In all likelihood you will have your comforter longer than the car you are now driving.

West Hampton's Dunes' Strange Path From Victim To Bully

By Dan Rattiner

Ten years ago, the Mayor of Westhampton Beach, Arma Andon, asked me if I would like to go for a duck ride. Down at the ocean, I found him in front of this large amphibious vehicle that goes on both water and land. I had never met Andon before. We shook hands and climbed on board. The captain started the engine and we proceeded slowly through the surf and out to sea. About a hundred yards out we turned to the west. The mayor was going to take me to the catastrophe.

It didn't take long. After about fifteen minutes of following the long, slender peninsula of Dune Road, we came to the spot where the ocean had washed through to the bay. It was huge, maybe a half mile across, and we motored easily into the bay and back out into the ocean. To our west, what had been the rest of the peninsula continued, and we traveled along in front of it on the ocean side, slowly surveying the damage.

"It's an island now," Andon said. "About two-hundred yards wide and three miles long. And the vandals have hit it."

When the sea washed through, the road was cut, the water lines were cut and the electricity was cut to almost two hundred beachfront homes. They were abandoned now, and you could see a deck wobbling off a second floor, a roof smashed in, a stove on the beach, a cesspool. The telephone poles, oddly, still stood, though some were knocked sideways.

"Where the cut is now," Andon said, "were about a hundred and ten private beachfront summer homes.

They're all gone. The land they were built on remains, but underwater."

We went all the way to the end of the island, which was Moriches Inlet, and surveyed the wreckage of what had once been Cupsogue Beach, a county beach for residents of Suffolk County. Near it was the roof of Morgan's White Cap. This had been an old beach buy a lot for $500 today."

The cause of all this wreckage was clear enough. Some years earlier, Suffolk County had made a decision to armor the beach between Quogue and the Moriches Inlet with a series of hundred-yard long stone jetties spaced a quarter-mile apart. Like the teeth of a comb, they were to catch all the sand drifting from east to west, and when completed, all the way to the inlet, would create a natural scouring to the west that would keep the inlet open and clear of sand. It was a great idea. But only half the jetties, starting to the east and ending midway, were built. Protests and demonstrations by citizens objecting to the use of public taxes to benefit oceanfront property owners shut the project down. With only half the jetties done, the scouring came where the one hundred and ten houses were. And it was a major disaster. The ocean undermined the summer homes,

It has all come about because of the pugnacious and combative style of Gary Vegliante. As he says, he has beaten the Federal Government, the state... He is not afraid of anybody.

bar. Now a sand dune was covering almost all of it.

Motoring through the ocean swells on the way back to Westhampton Beach, we passed where the hundred and ten houses had once stood. They had been built in the fifties and sixties, and handed down from father to son. I imagined, underwater, a rectangle of land — reflected on the surface of the ocean with some dotted lines — property still owned by those families. I wondered if it had any value.

"Maybe," Andon said. "The owners of the land have a lawsuit pending. But it's been going on ten years now and it's getting them nowhere. You could probably broke them up and carried them away, then linked up with the bay, turning the end of the peninsula into the abandoned and battered island we had just toured. It was amazing to see all of this.

One of the homeowners involved in the lawsuit back then was Gary Vegliante, a resident of Plandome Manor, who had a career as a special ed teacher, a bar owner and a lawyer. In 1992, the year I went on that duck trip, Vegliante's two computer drafting companies went bust, the IRS obtained a judgement against him for unpaid taxes for nearly a quarter-million dollars. Also, together with his wife, Claire,

There will be a fundraiser to benefit the Jason Noble Fund at the Bridgehampton Community House on Saturday, April 20, 6-12 p.m. Jason Noble, a local resident, was seriously injured in an automobile accident and is confined to a wheelchair but with courage and determination has made a new life for himself.

Steve Madden of women's shoe fame is beginning a 41-month prison sentence for securities fraud. He acted on insider information on stock trades five years ago. He has also agreed to pay $3.1 million in restitution and an $80,000 fine.

A nasty Manhattan divorce trial has netted Maria Kirsten a $1 million waterfront home in Southampton. Mrs. Kristen is 27, her ex-husband is Klaus Kirstein, 68, who is half owner of the infamous Conscience Point Inn where Lizzie Grubman put her car in reverse. Maria Kirsten also receives $1.7 million in real estate and cash.

East Hampton's Ron Perelman of Revlon is doing a cross promotion with MGM and Halle Berry that includes the next James Bond film Die Another Day and Revlon cosmetics. Perelman had Berry under contract long before Berry won her big Oscar last month.

They say you can never go home again... well, in this case you can. Steven Spielberg delighted and enchanted us with a movie that has and will stay in our hearts forever. E.T. has been re-released and you can now take your kids to see it in the movies. But, for you E.T. aficionados you will have to scrutinize the film a little bit more closely. After twenty years, to be a bit more correct there has been some changes. 1. The Feds who are chasing the kids and E.T. are now (with some computer trickery) holding walkie talkies... not guns. 2. One of the kids was dressed as a terrorist...now his outfit is described as a hippie's outfit. 3. Yes, they did leave the kid in with the Nixon Halloween mask (try explaining Richard Nixon to your 5 year old). All in all, it does remind us of the magic that Steven has brought into our lives and once again this year he has been honored for these efforts. The National Association of Theatre Owners awarded him with a lifetime achievement statuette.

Caught Alec Baldwin on the Dennis Miller Live Show last week and he was funny, articulate and it looks like single-minded again. Kristen Davis from Sex and the City was a constant date last summer...but not any more. Jeff Goldblum has been linked with Kirsten. Mr. Baldwin has nothing to worry about, he has never looked better. Word has it he will grace the cover of South of the Highway

he lost his home to foreclosure. Several years earlier, his summer home on Dune Road had washed away. About the only thing positive going on in his life at that time was the lawsuit against the county, the town, the state and the federal government to reimburse him for the disaster that had befallen him because of the installation of the jetties. He rented a place and threw all his energies into the lawsuit.

Vegliante soon discovered that the reason the lawsuits were going nowhere was because they had been filed by private citizens. He then came up with the incredible idea of turning this catastrophic former summer colony into an incorporated village. As a legal village they would have clout. He filled out the necessary papers. And he made it happen. Eleven people signed in favor of creating the village. Nobody opposed. The following year, maps would show there was now a place, a sorry place indeed, called the Village of West Hampton Dunes, totally separate from both Southampton Town and the Village of Westhampton Beach.

The first thing Vegliante did, as mayor of this new village, was to order a KEEP OUT sign posted where the broken-off road ended. The second thing he did was hire a police officer to enforce it.

Today, the village is a thriving place with a police force, hundreds of new houses, water lines, cable, electricity, telephone service and a new road. Hundreds of people were out at their homes last summer and hundreds more will be out this summer.

Within a year after the formation of West Hampton Dunes, the Federal Government ordered the Army Corps of Engineers to restore the breach made in the peninsula of this unfortunate village. A half-mile long corrugated steel wall, forty-feet high, was hammered thirty feet into the sea. Sand was pushed up against it on both sides, and the broken peninsula restored. Once again, one could drive out to the summer homes. And along the half-mile that the Army Corp had built — on these were the parcels that once had homes on them — new homes could be constructed. And they were.

The cost to the taxpayers for the Army Corps of Engineers to restore this breach was upwards of $80 million. And parcels, once back on dry land, were selling for $15,000, then $100,000 and today $600,000. The increase of the value of the property in the Village of West Hampton Dunes has been calculated in the tens of billions. And it has all come about because of the pugnacious and combative style of Gary Vegliante. As he says, he has beaten the Federal Government, the state, the county and the town. He is not afraid of anybody. And he makes no apologies for it. The KEEP OUT sign remained for a year, moved to where the broken road now links up with the mainland at the entrance to his village. Beyond that point, where the authorities give mayors wide latitude to run their villages, Vegliante and his village are run as a law unto themselves.

Newsday ran an article last fall about Vegliante, pointing out many of the things he has done and many of the run-ins he has had with outside authorities. Suffolk County says no information about who is being paid what inside the village has been provided to them and this is against the law. So what, Vegliante says. The county says the villagers could have all the money paid by them to the various officials there returned to them. The county also says Vegliante holds two jobs, that of mayor and that

OVER CROWDING OF DEER CONTINUES.....

Spring

Ticks, Salamanders, Brown Tide, Osprey, Gypsy Moths, Plovers

By Dan Rattiner

Now that spring is in the air, it is time to check on all the various animals in our community, friends and foes alike, to see how they are doing.

First of all, the expected spotted tiger salamander night migration in Sag Harbor never happened. You will recall that back in January, elaborate steps were taken to see to it that the annual migration of this endangered species, occurring in February through the woods of Mount Misery, would happen without human interference. A planned Superfund pollution cleanup around the abandoned Bulova Building was delayed until the migration was over. And a long pathway, designed with aluminum walls to keep the salamanders in, was constructed in late January in anticipation of the migration, connecting the traditional winter grounds of the salamander to the nearby breeding area of Long Pond. Any salamanders trying to climb the walls would fall back and those few that succeeded would find themselves in buckets that were countersunk on the other side of the aluminum. Volunteers from The Nature Conservancy watched the migration path day and night. No salamanders showed up. Nobody has any idea where they went.

Another migration, involving the osprey, an endangered bird that migrates between the eastern end of Long Island and Florida, has caused a construction project to be delayed in Amagansett.

In 2001, the Town of East Hampton granted permission to Marco and Carmela Schnabl of Rockville Center to build a 4,354-square foot house on 1.3 acres fronting on Napeague Bay. But there were conditions. Just adjacent to this small parcel there is a telephone pole upon which sits a nesting platform for osprey. Ospreys nest from March 15 to July 15. And many of them choose to nest on ment officer, said the site will be monitored closely and any unauthorized construction will be shut down.

The horrible infestation of gypsy moths, that terrorized much of the North Fork, Brookhaven and East Hampton last spring, is not expected to happen this spring. During the late winter, a tag team of environmentalists and exterminators have been spraying the trees with a combination of a fungus and a virus designed to kill more than 95% of the black and red gypsy moth eggs that were laid by adult moths the previous summer. It is these eggs that hatch into hungry, voracious red and black gypsy moth caterpillars that gnaw their way through the leaves of the trees they are hatched in, defoliating them.

Last year's infestation was estimated to number close to a trillion little black caterpillars that could be seen everywhere, dripping from the foliage, leaving in their wake defoliated forests that astronauts said they could see from outer space. This was the biggest infestation in almost half a century. But because of these joint efforts, it will not happen again this May, June and July.

However, there are expected to be spikes in the deer population, and also in the deer tick and dog tick populations this spring. So while the leaves on the tops of the trees may be spared from the gypsy moths, the deer are expected to eat the leaves one of about fifty platforms high above the ground, built and maintained by The Nature Conservancy, throughout the East End. No building construction can take place during that time, unless a professional environmentalist certifies on June 1 that no osprey are in residence by that time.

The Schnabls are eager to abide by this restriction because they do not want to scare off mating osprey (osprey are aggressive birds with wingspans of six feet or more) and because that is the law. Around March 25, a pair did move in, however. They are currently building their nest. Construction on the Schnabl parcel has stopped. from the branches located from the ground up to about eight feet, which is about as high as they can reach. The deer and dog ticks, which often make their homes on the bodies of these animals, can cause one of several different kinds of disease, including the now infamous Lyme Disease.

In Montauk last week, a fisherman aboard the Jason and Danielle dragger caught a rare, unidentifiable five-foot long fish in its nets while fishing off Block Island. They took it to Stuart's Seafood Market in Amagansett where it was packed in ice. It has now been sent to the Harvard Museum in Cambridge, Massachusetts, which has the most complete collection of rare fish in the country. They have identified this fish as a channel scabbard, an eel-like creature that generally lives far to the south of Montauk and deep down in the darkness of the ocean. That it has been caught near the surface of the ocean and this far north is most unusual. Those who saw this fish say it has very large, very spooky eyes.

There is no news yet about whether or not there will be a brown tide here on the East End this summer. The brown tide is made of algae and sometimes extends for fifty miles, clogging the beaches and shoreline, suffocating almost all marine life in the area that cannot get away. There hasn't been one in three years. Before that there was a brown tide during three of the prior five years. Nobody knows what causes it. At the present time, there is a black tide of algae hugging the Gulf of Mexico side of the Florida Keys extending for a distance of a hundred and thirty miles. Like the gypsy moth caterpillar infestation of last year, it is clearly visible by astronauts circling the earth from outer space.

Piping plovers, an endangered species of shore bird, nest in the spring along some of our beaches, apparently choosing them at random. Several have already built nests.

During the nesting season, which extends from April to July, environmentalists rope off the beaches where piping plovers live; the public cannot use them. The presence of human beings scares the plovers. There are stiff fines for violating the order against disturbing piping plover nesting areas.

The Riverhead Foundation for Marine Research and Preservation called the State Park Police in Montauk last week to order bystanders to move away from a beach where they were untangling a seal that had been caught in a net. Several tickets were issued to people driving vehicles on the beach there without a state permit. The presence of these people was agitating the seal.

The incident took place about a mile and a half to the west of Montauk Point on the Long Island Sound side, not far from where seals congregate on an outcropping of rocks. Onlookers are supposed to remain at the back of the dune, near an observation platform, not on the beach itself where their presence can agitate injured animals.

Beige snakes with brown spots on them have been seen on Three Mile Harbor Road in East Hampton.

The giant spiders the size of dinner plates, seen along Scuttle Hole Road in Bridgehampton, fifteen years ago have still not returned.

Did I leave anybody out?

The Boot

Sag Harbor Resident Finds A "Boot" On His Car, Breaks It, And Drives Away

By Dan Rattiner

Andrew Baker's ordeal began about noon that Saturday when he and his wife Robin decided to go see the movie "A Beautiful Mind" in East Hampton. It was a matinee. It would begin at 1.

About a quarter past twelve, Andrew left the store he has run in Sag Harbor for the past fifteen years, Harbor Music, and walked out into the parking lot where by pre-arrangement, his wife Robin picked him up. With her was Andrew's mother, Trudy, who wanted to go grocery shopping at the far end of downtown East Hampton, and as they drove along toward that town, they discussed the logistics of the afternoon. They would drop Trudy off at the store, park and go to the movie, and then, at 3, they would walk back to the car, a green 1996 Jeep Cherokee, and drive over and pick her up. Trudy expected she would have many packages with her. She'd wait out front.

Robin parked her car around a quarter to one in the lot behind the Windmill Deli in East Hampton, a short walk from the theater. At a quarter to three, the movie over, they spilled out of the theater with the rest of the crowd and headed back toward Robin's car. There was a shiny, red metal boot on the rear wheel so it could not go anywhere. Slapped on the windshield, stuck to it actually, was a big sticker informing them they had parked illegally and that the company that enforced the laws in this parking lot and several other parking lots in town, C. E. T. Services, would be collecting a fine of $162.37 by cash or credit card before the boot was removed. Baker looked at the sticker and the boot. He only had limited cash with him. No credit cards. As for the rest of the parking lot, though it was not filled, he noted there were seven or eight other cars in the lot with the stickers on the windshield.

A young man with a clipboard walked over.

"Who are you?" Baker asked.

"I'm from C. E. T.," the young man said. "Sorry about this. You can only park here a half hour. This is a private lot. And the boot will stay on your car until this fine is paid."

"You can't do this," Baker said.

Robin was fishing for her keys.

"Oh yes I can."

"You can send me a bill," Baker said. "You have to remove the boot from my car. My mother is waiting for me to pick her up. She has a lot of packages."

"The boot stays on your car until the bill is paid," the young man said.

Andrew Baker is a prominent member of the East End community. He is a former President of the Sag Harbor Chamber of Commerce. He raises money for charity. As many have done before him when confronted by C. E. T., before buckling under to the inevitable, he raised his voice.

"This is extortion. And this is America. You can't do this.

There was nothing unusual about him. He wore a windbreaker and jeans.

"I'm going to be collecting this fine from you," the young man said.

Baker looked him up and down. He had no

"You are holding my car hostage. I have to pick up my mother."

Boot

The young man was just beginning to speak again when Andrew Baker did something that changed the inevitable and, three weeks later, led to a confrontation with the East Hampton Village police. He crouched down by the boot, pulled it hard with his hands, then stood up and stomped down on it with his foot. The boot broke. Andrew glared at the man with the clipboard, then got into his car, and together with his wife, drove away. A few minutes later, he and his wife picked up his mother, standing patiently in front of the store at the far end of town, and they drove off to Sag Harbor in silence.

"What happened?" Andrew's mother asked.

It may seem amazing to anybody who reads this, but this business with C. E. T. has been going on for over a year now, since last spring, when a Detective Gerard Larsen of the East Hampton Village Police Force started this company. At first they charged $217 plus tax to have someone put a key in the boot to unlock it. Then they reduced it to $125. Now, apparently, it is $150 plus tax. (Consider the Saturday incident with Baker. He saw stickers on seven cars. His being eight, that is a quick $1,200 for C. E. T. in just that one hour.)

And nobody, not the East Hampton Village Board or the Ladies Village Improvement Society or anybody else, lifts a finger to stop this behavior. C. E. T. has arrangements now with at least four private parking lot owners in the Village of East Hampton including lots owned by Ben Krupinski, the Schenck Family, the Bank of New York and 66 Newtown Lane Inc. They also boot cars in the Southampton Market lot in Southampton owned by the Southampton IGA company. At all of them, they hold people's cars hostage until they pay this outrageous sum to unlock the boot, and they require the cash on the spot in broad daylight —holdup fashion. Or your car stays there. This is great public relations for the village. And nobody does a thing.

On the other hand, if something goes wrong in this transaction, as it did that Saturday afternoon with Andrew Baker, there is something that C. E. T. can do and does, which is to involve the East Hampton Village Police. Detective Larsen is still on the force there —nothing wrong with that — and though he says he has sold his interest in this enforcement company, people question it. It is a private company. It is not clear who owns it and they don't have to tell you. Nevertheless, the police move into action, helping C. E. T. get their money, in what most people would consider a civil matter.

Here is how it works and here is what happened that Saturday afternoon. The young man with the clipboard had photographed the couple with a digital camera before approaching them. As they

You Changed The Wall Clocks, But What About Your Internal Clock?

By Dan Rattiner

Last Sunday daylight savings time began. We went around the house adjusting all our clocks. Set them forward an hour. Stove clocks. VCRs. Wrist watches. Wall clocks. But what about our internal clocks, shouldn't they be reset, too? Well, they can. And if you haven't done yours, do it now.

To reset your internal clock, stick your pinkie in your bellybutton and give it a twist a quarter turn to the right. This quarter turn, as God made us, equals exactly one hour. If you are a later model, with an "outie" belly button consult your manual. Most "outies" come with a special tool you can use for these special twice a year re-adjustments. You will find this tool in a sleeve on the inside back cover of your manual.

When done, carefully place the tool back inside the sleeve of the manual so you will have it available in the fall when it comes time to adjust your internal clock back an hour.

It is inadvisable to make your internal clock adjustment while looking in a mirror. Many people who have tried this find they are off by two hours because they have done it backwards. For the same reason, it's inadvisable to have a friend make your internal clock adjustment for you.

If you find you have done it wrong, do not attempt to try it a second time. Instead, go to the emergency room of the nearest hospital, where there are trained professionals who will help you. They have the testing equipment to see just exactly how much you have screwed it up. And they have the official federal repair kit designed to readjust your internal clock accurately and efficiently. There is no charge for this service.

Daylight Savings Time was ordered into effect thirty in the evening, there were plenty of people awake who needed to turn on lights in their houses. By making the time change from five-thirty to six-thirty a.m., and from six-thirty to seven-thirty p.m., lights needed to be turned on for fewer hours in the evening, saving a considerable amount of precious oil and coal needed for the war effort.

That fall, the war ended, and President Wilson ordered that the time be returned back to standard time just before Halloween. However, several states liked daylight savings time and rebelled at the idea of changing back. In the end, all the states in the union except Arizona agreed to return to Standard Time. Arizona voted not to and to this day operates year around on Daylight Savings Time. (Arizona, in the 1980s, also became the only state to decide NOT to make Martin Luther King's birthday a national holiday. It's STILL not a holiday in Arizona.)

Also deciding not to return to standard time was Hawaii, which was not a state at the time but a territory, and a few counties in Indiana where rebels, apparently, barricaded themselves in buildings refusing to change the time back and the feds just said oh well if that's the way they want it and walked away.

It is inadvisable to make your internal clock adjustment while looking in a mirror. Many people who have tried this find they are off by two hours...

by President Woodrow Wilson during the First World War. At the time, it was seen that at the beginning of April the sun rose about five-thirty in the morning, and then set about six-thirty in the evening. Since almost no one was up at five-thirty, the daylight was wasted, while after six-of village administrator. The mayor is supposed to supervise the administrator. A law says they are supposed to be two different people. Vegliante says so what again. When the Suffolk County Board of Health said they could not approve a subdivision whereby four homesites could be turned into eight homesites, Vegliante said he was not afraid of them, issued a building permit and dared the county to order a fine. The fine came. $10,000. The builders paid it. Today the buildings are completed and occupied. Last year Vegliante refused to allow The Nature Conservancy volunteers to block off beach access in certain places as required by law when piping plovers make their nests. He also told Scott Strough, the chairman of the Southampton Town Trustees, that he would have him arrested if he came onto the village to build a wetlands trench. No trench was built.

"I want nothing to do with him," Strough later said.

Now, however, Vegliante may have made a major miscalculation. Last week, the Village of West Hampton Dunes filed a lawsuit claiming that all the private residents of the village own not only to the top of the dunes in front of their homes, but right down to the ocean itself. Nowhere in the State of New York do private citizens own this land. It is owned by the towns. But in the Village of West Hampton Dunes, when the paperwork was being drawn up about spending the $80 million to restore the peninsula, a deed was signed handing over ownership of all the beaches from the private residents to the town. The taxpayers were not about to restore beaches to property they did not own. This was a routine bit of paperwork.

But the village lawsuit says they have looked and these deeds were never filed in the county clerk's office. And so because of this technical glitch, we taxpayers have spent $80 million to restore the beaches of private oceanfront property owners.

The village residents love their mayor. He has turned disaster into triumph. And regardless of the ethics of this new claim, they are going along with whatever he decides. If victorious, of course, they expect they will be able to completely keep the general public off their beaches, control all access and even tell the piping plovers to build their nests somewhere else.

There are, however, two things wrong with this picture. For one thing, regardless of who owns between the dunes and the sea, it is under the jurisdiction of the Southampton Town Trustees, a group entrusted with that task in 1681 by order of the King of England, and upheld many times in court.

Vegliante says he is not afraid of the Town Trustees.

The other thing is this: if the village wins the lawsuit, then the private homeowners have defrauded the public. A huge amount of money, averaging a half-million dollars for each property owner, would therefore be owed to the Army Corps of Engineers and the taxpayers who hired them.

Edward P. Romaine, who is Suffolk County Clerk, and an expert on property legal matters, says the homeowners cannot win this case.

"The ownership of property changes hands when a signed deed is handed over from the selling party to the buying party," he says, "Filing the transaction with the County Clerk comes afterward."

Maybe so. But where are the deeds? They've got to be around here somewhere. •

Sold!

Henry Ford's Estate, Fordune, Goes On And Off The Auction Block, Again

By Susan W. Simm

It's official. Fordune, the palatial estate on the ocean in Southampton built by Henry Ford II, was sold on January 9 for $21.75 million to Zweig-DiMenna hedge fund partner Brenda Earl of Manhattan's Upper West Side. Originally listed in 1999 at $35 million, the 44-acre estate languished on the market until this winter.

Built in 1960 by Ford and his wife Anne McDonnell, the mansion has many of the requisite Hampton amenities: seven bedrooms, Venetian chandeliers, marble fireplaces, heated swimming pool, tennis court and, best of all, a quarter-mile stretch of private ocean beach.

Originally a 235-acre estate, Fordune was part of Anne McDonnell's divorce settlement from Henry Ford in 1964. She sold it to Carlo Traglio in 1975 for the even-then bargain price of $1.8 million. Traglio, who owned the property until the recent sale to Earl, spent the next ten years subdividing the acreage into what is now Jule Pond Drive, which is dotted with multi-million dollar homes built in the 80s and 90s, leaving 44 acres with the main house. That house, though reportedly in something of a state of disrepair according to several real estate agents, is inconsequential given that ocean-front acres have been known to sell for $1 million apiece.

To tell the story of how the founder of Ford Motor Company's grandson came to build a mansion in Southampton, a place he reportedly disliked, is to tell the story of how two wealthy Irish Catholic families, the Murrays and McDonells, changed forever the sleepy, aristocratic hamlet that they embraced. It is also the story of how those families, chronicled in 1977 in a book by John Corry, became known as Southampton's Golden Clan. And as all things enchanting inevitably do, they would become the stuff of myth and legend.

Thomas E. Murray was born in 1860 in Albany, New York, to a carpenter from rural Ireland. A brilliant inventor, Murray built his first steam engine as a teenager and became an engineer before the age of twenty, working for the Albany Municipal Gaslight Company. By 1900, Murray had married Catherine Bradley and moved to Crown Heights, Brooklyn, where he would work for a new company – created by William Rockefeller, Anthony Brady and J.P. Morgan: the Consolidated Gas Company – which would later become Consolidated Edison and control all gas and electricity supplies to the City of New York.

Thomas and Catherine, devout Catholics, prospered, moved into ever-nicer homes and had eight children along the way. Soon there were butlers, cooks and a chauffeur, too. Then, in the summer of 1915, one of Tom's children, Anna, met James McDonnell, whom she would marry the following year. Wall Street, in those days, was notoriously unkind to the Irish and the Jews, many of whom formed their own firms in response. And so two years prevailing values of the Old Guard questioned.

Tom Murray's house, "Wickapogue," was a vast, shingled affair right on the ocean. Originally part of the Harry Huttleston Rogers estate – the Standard Oil heir who also owned "The Port of Missing Men" in North Sea – the main house had been torn down by the time the Murrays arrived. Anna and James McDonnell bought next door and soon the whole family was buying up land near the patriarch. Eventually, the clan would inhabit a "family compound" of 160 acres just outside the village, bordered by Gin Lane to the west and Wickabogue Road to the north. In fact, the cement wall at the end of Gin still stands today that marked the beginning of the Rogers estate and the gatehouse, a pink, stucco confection with a turret tower is presently owned by George Soros.

While the Murrays and McDonells, who attended the great stone church on Hill Street, Sacred Hearts, spent a good deal of time keeping to themselves, they did join the Southampton Bathing Corporation – which still epitomizes the classic understatement of Southampton – and, being as attractive and numerous as they were, attracted a great deal of attention from the press. In fact, later, James founded McDonnell & Company, a brokerage that would prosper and support many family members over the next fifty years until its collapse in the late 60s.

Despite the Depression, Anna and James' fortune and family increased – they would have a total of according to John Corry, society columnist Maury Paul, credited with coining the phrase "café society" in the early 20s, began to specialize in them. And while prejudicial sentiments were undoubtedly overheard in some circles, the good-natured and good-looking clan earned many more friends than enemies. Anna McDonnell became close to Rose Kennedy, a fellow Irish Catholic, after the latter moved to New York from Boston during the 30s. And, of course, Joe Kennedy's ambassadorship to England helped change public sentiment toward Irish Catholics even more.

In time, many Murrays and McDonnells became members of Southampton's notoriously exclusive clubs. Besides the Bathing Corporation, there was the Meadow Club for tennis and the Shinnecock Golf Club. They sailed off of Westhampton and rode at the Southampton Hunt Club while chauffeurs waited outside. And when Thomas E. Murray Jr.'s eldest daughter, Marie, came of age, she had a coming out party under a vast tent on the ocean in 1939. Hundreds of guests attended while, far from the festivities, Germany invaded Poland. But something else happened in 1939. Anne McDonnell, Marie's cousin, got engaged to Henry Ford II.

Anne met Henry in the mid-30s and, by all accounts, it was not love at first sight for her. Henry, however, a student at Yale at the time, began making frequent appearances at the McDonnell household. Finally, when he asked Anne's father James for her hand, he was refused on the basis that he wasn't Catholic. Willing to do anything at this point, Henry, a Methodist, converted to Catholicism. And reportedly, one day before he was to marry Anne, Henry was baptized at the big stone church on Hill Street.

The wedding, on July 13, 1940, was the social event of the season. Henry Ford, founder of Ford Motor Company and grandfather of the groom, arrived with his wife in their private railroad car. Rose Kennedy attended, along with John, Joseph, Eunice and Kathleen. Pope Pius XII even sent his blessing all the way from Rome. At the reception, Anne danced with her new grandfather-in-law and when it was all over, the couple departed for a honeymoon in Honolulu. All of this gaiety, however, was overshadowed by the war raging abroad. Even as the wedding music played, Nazi General Hermann Goering ordered the Luftwaffe to bomb England. Dogfights raged over the English Channel and, soon after Churchill ordered the bombing of Berlin, the Luftwaffe would retaliate by destroying London.

But wars can mean good business for car companies, and in March of 1941, Ford built its first "general purpose" vehicle - G.P. or "jeep" - for the U.S. military. By February, 1942, Ford had shifted to total military production. In June of 1945, the company built its last B-24 Liberator bomber. All told, Ford built 8,600 bombers, 278,000 jeeps and 57,000 aircraft engines during WW II. And in September of that same year, Henry Ford II, then twenty-six - who would become famous for settling internal disputes with, "my name is on the building" - was named company president.

On Henry's watch, the company would build automobile legends like Ford Thunderbird and Mustang. And by April of 1959, it would have manufactured fifty million vehicles.

In 1960, Henry became chairman of Ford Motor Company, a position he held until 1980. His life was in Detroit, a place Anne disliked as much as Henry did Southampton. But that didn't mean he didn't try to fit in. So they bought over 200 acres of land on the ocean near the family compound and built a big, white mansion. They called it Fordune. The rest of the family referred to it as Versailles. The house was, as it is today, surrounded by ponds, expansive lawns, a greenhouse and, of course, fabulous views.

It is not clear how much time the couple and their two daughters, Charlotte and Anne, and son, Edsel, actually spent at the house after it was completed. The marriage had been deteriorating for some time and, in 1964, finally ended in divorce. In 1965, Henry married Christina Austin, whom he had met while still married to Anne. Anne, whose divorce settlement was said to be somewhere around $20 million, remarried also, in the late 60s, to California lawyer Deane Johnson.

The fortunes of many of the Murrays and McDonnells would change dramatically with the demise of McDonnell & Company in 1970. T. Murray McDonnell, Anne's brother, took over running the firm after their father James' death in 1958. Murray, who was big pals with Jackie Onassis, liked to live life on a grand scale. He expanded the firm but could not keep up with the fanatical record-keeping essential for the success of any financial institution during the Wall Street boom of the early 60s. By 1968, while McDonnell reported $33 million in revenue, the profit could not be determined. By 1969, the inevitable was looming: the company posted an operating loss of over $6 million. And by 1970, it was all over.

Although the loss of McDonnell & Company was a big financial blow to many of the clan, it had less

No Yankees On Cable But Here's A Yankee Game You Can Play

By Dan Rattiner

As three million Long Islanders know, the Yankee games are not being broadcast on television this year. The reason is a standoff between Cablevision, the Long Island cable TV monopoly, and the YES network, which owns the rights to broadcast the Yankees. YES has worked things out with Time-Warner and Liberty Cable in Manhattan, Queens, Brooklyn and the Bronx. YES and Cablevision are at an impasse. So Long Islanders do not get the Yankees.

At this writing, it's been a week into the season without the Yankees. You CAN get them here on Long Island if you want to change over to a satellite dish service. But 90% of Cablevision customers are not taking the trouble. Yet. Cablevision is running full-page ads. YOU CAN GET THE WEATHER REPORT ON THE SATELLITE, BUT YOU CAN ONLY GET THE LOCAL WEATHER AND TRAFFIC ON CABLEVISION.

If you aren't a Yankee fan and didn't know about this problem, you might be thinking about looking at a satellite dish service to replace your cable service after reading this. Defensive advertising never works. But it seems to suggest that Cablevision is into this standoff for the long haul.

Well, there's always radio. Some say listening to a game on radio is good for the soul, because you have to see it in your mind, and that's good mental exercise.

"Hernandez looks for the sign. He checks the runners. Tyner is leaning off third, Winn off first, he leaps up and he's got it. A backhanded catch high over his head. It's in the web. Tyner tags up and will score easily. And Winn heads toward second, and here comes the throw. It's a TERRIFIC throw. And they've got him in a run down!"

You get the idea.

"Here we are folks. The bottom of the ninth and everything hangs on this next pitch. One team's a loser. The other wins the series. Hubble throws it in..."

I was on the Orient Point ferry the other day, heading toward New London with my eighteen-year-old son. We were bound for Boston to look at colleges, and I took out a deck of cards. The ferry trip is an hour and a half.

"When I was your age," I told him, "I invented a baseball game you can play with a deck of cards. Let me show you."

He said he would give it a try. I shuffled the cards.

I am a Met fan. I go to Shea once or twice a year. The Yanks with all their millions buy the best players and are just too good. Anyway, I like to root for the underdog. Also I'm from Long Island. So with all of the above, I don't really care that the Yanks aren't on TV.

But I will offer up to all you Yankee fans this card game I showed my son. We played nine innings and he won it in the bottom of the ninth, with a two-run home run. The game took ten close to the bag. Here comes the pitch. Cox takes it, high and outside, ball one. He almost went for it, but then held up. One and oh. Hernandez kicks at the dirt. Looks out to left field..."

Baseball is a slow business. Always has been. It's in the details.

"Here comes the pitch, and Cox tags it. It's a long drive out to left center. Bernie Williams is going back, back, way back, he's at the wall and minutes to play. So go play my card game while I watch the Mets.

We shuffle the cards and start with the top half of the first inning. Each batter up has two sequences. The first sequence is balls and strikes. You turn over the cards from the top, one at a time. Ace through four is a strike. Five through ten is a ball. Jack, Queen and King are a hit. If the player walks or strikes out, you go on to the next batter. If there's a hit, then the bat struck the ball.

Now we go on to the second sequence, which consists of turning over one more card. That tells you the outcome of what happened when the batter hit the ball.

2 through 8 are outs. (Refinements: 2 through 5 are infield outs. 6 is a short fly ball to the outfield and runners hold. 7 is a fly ball to the outfield and will drive in a runner from third. 8 is a long fly out, but will advance all runners one base. If there is a runner on first, a 2 or 3 will double him off. A 4 or 5 holds the runner.)

9 and 10 are singles advancing runners one base. Jack is a single advancing all runners two bases. Queen is a double.

Red Kings are triples.

Black Kings are home runs.

Aces are home runs.

If you are a Yankee fan who does not have a life other than watching them on TV, you can play this game using the starting lineups of any two teams, for example the Yankees and Tampa Bay. Make modifications. Make the 8 a single if you've got Bernie Williams at the plate. Or, if you've got some loser at the end of the lineup, make the nine a long fly ball out instead of a single. If you take this seriously, you can edge your way into that made-up baseball league people play called Fantasy Baseball. Keep records on everybody.

"Here we are folks. The bottom of the ninth and everything hangs on this next pitch. One team's a loser. The other wins the series. Sherdel throws it in, a screwball right over the plate and Babe Ruth fouls it off. The count remains three and two. Bottom of the ninth. Bases loaded. Two out. The Cardinals six and the Yankees three. Everybody's standing up here at the stadium, clapping and cheering for the Babe, who bangs his bat on home plate. Now he's ready. Here comes the pitch. And he TAGS IT! It's a long fly deep out to left center. Renneth moves back, back, but all he can do is look at it. It's upstairs. And the Yankees win it! The Yankees win it! The Yankees win it!"

Magazine this Memorial Day issue.

We have been reporting about a very over hyped documentary by Robin Leacock that is entitled It Girl. Since it is a film about a couple of our favorite Southampton girls, Paris and Nicky Hilton, and a few other daughters of Industries finests we couldn't care... we just want to see it...the movie that is. It seems that the party for the It Girl premier did not bring out enough of the girls featured in the film. Missing were the Hiltons, Herrerias and the Ronnsons. Petite bombshell Casey Johnson (yes...of Johnson and Johnson Company) and Elizabeth Cord did show. I guess we have to wait for the video.

We're still waiting for the phone call. If Playboy magazine can approach the women of Enron for a pictorial spread, what about the women of Dan's Papers?

We like to think the brightest of the stars come out here to the Hamptons. One of them comes as far out... as Bellport. That's okay we'll take it. Isabella Rossellini will host the Annual Bellport Film Society Fundraiser at Painters' Restaurant. The evening (April 28) will feature discussion, music, raffles and (sigh!) a close up look of Isabella. Call 286-1910 effect on others. The daughters of Jack and Jeanne Murray, Anne's cousins, who were known collectively as Southampton's "fabulous Murray sisters," married well, as Anne herself did. Jeanne Murray, much to the disapproval of her Irish Catholic parents, married Alfred Vanderbilt out of the church in 1945 and together they built an estate in Old Westbury, Broadhollow, where they spent time with neighbors Bill and Babe Paley. Cathie Murray di Montezemolo, active in local charities, married a marquis, Alessandro, and is one of only a few Murrays and McDonnells remaining in Southampton today.

Anne's daughter, Charlotte – who received an engagement ring from Stavros Niarchos, the Greek shipping magnate the family was said to refer to as "the skating rink" – is the author of books on etiquette. She also remains involved with the Ford Motor Company, whose board she petitioned in 1989 for a greater family presence. Ten years later, nearly 100 years after the first Model T rolled off the assembly line, the family still controlled 40% of the company.

After Anne's divorce from Henry, she kept a Fifth Avenue apartment and, along with Charlotte, helped maintain her mother Anna's lifestyle – after the firm's collapse – until the latter's death in 1975. Anna McDonnell, who came to Southampton so long ago, lived to see extraordinary change in this part of the world. And when she passed away, she left behind thirteen of her fourteen children, sixty-five grandchildren and a legacy that survives to this day. • drove off, he wrote down the license number of the car. Then he brought the photograph and the broken boot down to the police station. The police agreed that charges of criminal mischief could be filed by them for destroying private property. Andrew Baker could be handcuffed and brought in. In fact, he could be charged with a felony, which carries jail time. The value of the boot exceeds the minimum requirement for such a charge.

Andrew Baker, meanwhile, was having other troubles. Late in the day, his foot began to hurt. By the following morning, Sunday, it had swollen so much he had to be taken to Southampton Hospital where x-rays revealed he had broken a small bone in his foot, directly behind his big toe. His leg was put in a cast. He was given crutches, which he found were too clumsy for him to use because of the pain he was in, and then he was given a walker. Baker, age 47, left the hospital, not under his own steam, and he went home.

The matter of the damage to property languished in the village police station for a few days. Of course, the police were hoping they would not have to arrest a prominent member of the community. And so, at first, they allowed that lawyers for C. E. T. should be permitted to try to get Andrew Baker to make restitution for the damage he caused. A few days later, these lawyers wrote Andrew Baker a letter, a threatening letter according to Baker, in which they said the matter would be closed if Baker sent them $485.63, which would make good on the replacement of the boot ($250 value), plus the cost of the ticket. Baker took the letter over to his attorney Patricia Weiss.

She advised him to ignore it.

And so, this past Monday, Officer Janice Harrington of the East Hampton Village Police Department went to see Andrew Baker of Sag Harbor and told him he would be liable to arrest if he did not pay the bill to C. E. T. On Tuesday, Baker received more calls, one of them from Officer Margaret Dunn who told him essentially the same thing. Again, Andrew Baker did nothing.

Many people have rallied to the defense of Andrew Baker as a result of these events. The situation cannot go on. A lawyer for Baker, Michael Griffith, plans to file at least three charges against C. E. T. These include malicious mischief, which occurs if you impair or damage the usefulness of a person's property, larceny, which occurs if you withhold a person's property unless they pay you money (this is not a mechanic's lien), and putting graffiti on a person's property — the sticker to the front of the windshield.

As for Detective Larson's involvement, if any, Griffith had this to say: "We believe Larsen still owns a part of C. E. T."

Baker has suffered through a very bad few weeks. He refused to leave his mother on the street corner. He is physically injured. He is emotionally upset.

"I know a person who has been booted while going out to get insulin for his son. I know people who have been unable to pick up their kids. George Plimpton got booted and had a terrible experience. What are they trying to do here? They don't want people parking in their lots. So tow them out of the lots and send the vehicle owners a bill. But what they do is boot the cars and then you can't get them out of the lots. This is crazy.

"I've been threatened with arrest. I'm getting around on a walker. And it's time somebody stood up to this. That's me."

We can motorize it!

The Sheltered Islander By Sally Flynn

Observations of an Islander # 195

Answer: Quantum Physics, Income Tax Codes, OJ Simpson's Acquittal

Question: Name three things beyond human comprehension.

"But in this world nothing is certain but death and taxes." Benjamin Franklin

It's that time again... half of America will be at it's kitchen table this weekend cursing and swearing about where the receipts are, where are the W-2s, what form is needed and not present, why is the state form more complicated than the federal one, where is the pencil sharpener and most of all, why are we never ready for this onslaught of legal insanity that comes every year?

"The trick is to stop thinking of it as 'your' money".
IRS Revenue Auditor

I'm so happy that this year they are allowing people to deduct costs of a diet this year. That's going to help me alot. I'm always on two or three diets at any given time. I just never get enough to eat on one.

"The hardest thing in the world to understand is income tax!" Albert Einstein

I thank God for TurboTax. It's so great to sit in private with your computer and tax program. You can experiment with figures, scream, stop and cry, take a nap, park a pitcher of margarita's next to the computer, stop to beat your children who are foraging for food in the kitchen and distracting you, beat the dog, and perform any other stress reducing intercessions you can think of.

"War involves in its progress such a train of unforeseen and un-supposed circumstances that no human wisdom can calculate the end. It has but one thing certain, and that is to increase taxes."
Thomas Paine

Did you know this country did not have Federal Income Tax until 1942? It was a temporary cash flow fix to support the war. The politicians fought hard to get it all in writing that this was a temporary tax that would absolutely terminate when the war did. The government was completely surprized at the amount of money they got using this simple device of applying a small tax to everyone's income. The IRS was created in 1953, like a bloodhound who caught the scent, the government not only kept the Income Tax money, they set up an organization to go after more.

"The IRS telephone taxpayer assistance program provides about 8.5 million Americans the wrong answers to even the most basic inquiries about the tax laws." quote from: Why You Can't Trust the IRS by Daniel J. Pilla

Well, there's a comforting fact. Press One to ask a question. To provide you with quality care, please enter your Social Security Number. Using the keypad on your phone, please spell your last name. Do you have a question about your current tax due or your present tax due? Press 1 for yes, 2 for no. Of your current live children, how many were also live at birth? Press 1 for yes, 2 for no. Would you like to continue with our automated service or speak to a live representative? Press 1 for yes, 2 for no.

"This year roughly 10 million Americans will receive correction notices from the IRS' assessing about $4 billion. About half of those notices will be erroneous." quote from : Why You Can't Trust the IRS by Daniel J. Pilla

Dear Taxpayer, We regret to inform you that your death in 1994 cannot be used as justification for not paying estimated taxes in 1995 and 1999. You are current for the years before 1999, but not 1995. Your 1995 taxes due are the same as you paid in 1996 adding 12% for late fees and 17.91% penalty. Please remit the monies due. In the future, please furnish a current copy of your death certificate for that tax year with your tax return.

"When there is an income tax, the just man will pay more and the unjust less on the same amount of income." Plato ...as quoted in the April 15, 561 B.C. Toga Times.

"There is no art which one government sooner learns from another than that of draining money from the pockets of the people." Adam Smith

I understand using the money for roads, public works, etc. I have a problem with bizarre scientific studies, like what holds gravity on the ground, et. al.

"About 40 percent of the revenues the IRS collects through penalty assessments are abated when citizens challenge the penalties. In 1993 taxpayers were over- charged $5 billion." quote from : Why You Can't Trust the IRS by Daniel J. Pilla

Well, it's nothing to worry about really, I mean,

OXYGEN TAKES A DEEP BREATH

Oxygen Media celebrated its second anniversary with a monster bash at EXIT on the West Side of Manhattan. There were three floors of party hardy guests. There were celebrities galore, although most were pocketed on the "all access only" third floor, and enough photographers and TV crews to keep the celebs busy for an hour just getting through the red carpet. Oxygen under the helm of visionary Gerry Laybourne, has been growing in a very crowded cable TV market and roadkill-strewn internet market. There were cable executives from around the country's MSOs, they're called, who dress button down and bring their comptrollers with them. Celebs brought their entourages but if they came alone Oxygen supplied one.

We've got your back, Kim. It seems some fans of this beautiful and now best-selling author, Kim Catrall (Satisfaction, co-authored with husband Mark Levinson) is having fan (fanatic) trouble. It has been reported that every once in a while an over-eager fan or two has wanted to get just a little too close to our neighbor. HBO's answer for this problem... a husky security guard is at her side when she goes out in public.

You would never expect "such a New Yawker" from the Bronx to call the Hamptons home but we are so glad he does. John Leguizamo who's Broadway's one man show Sexaholix...A Love Story was an off-beat surprise and hilarious hit that HBO picked it up and now has it showing as a special on April 13, 10 p.m. You've got to kick back and check this out seeing he is now our neighbor and all.

Director Anthony Harvey of Southampton will be on hand Monday, April 15, 6 p.m. in the duke Lecture hall of Southampton College to discuss his Oscar nominated film The Lion in Winter. A screening will follow. The program is free and open to the public.

it's not like we'd have a revolution over excessive taxation or something....

"He who has the base necessities of life should pay nothing; taxation on him who has a surplus may, if need be; extend to everything beyond necessities". Jean Jacques Rousseau

And there's the rub.... the IRS gets to decide what is "necessary" to our lives. How is it that cosmetics are not necessary to my life? How can you tell me cable TV is not necessary to my life? What about shrine maintenance? All employers at Dan's Papers have a Dan Shrine at home. A framed picture in gold of The Master. I have small bowls of paper clips, ink cartridges and fresh coffee at the shrine 24/7. Yet, despite the obvious, none of my shrine maintenance costs were allowed last year.

"A General Accounting Office audit of the IRS in 1993 found widespread evidence of financial malfeasance and gross negligence. The IRS could not account for 64 percent of its congressional appropriation." quote from : Why You Can't Trust the IRS by Daniel J. Pilla

So, who watches the watcher?

"Your federal government needs your money so that it can perform vital services for you that you would not think up yourself in a million years." Dave Barry (US columnist)

I couldn't have said it better if I had my own nationally syndicated column.

Dan's North Fork

Have You Met: Judy Cochran, Artist/Nurse/Pirate

By Susan W. Simm

What do a psychiatric nurse, a collage artist and a pirate have in common? Judy Cochran, one the North Fork's newest residents. Although Judy is new to the East End, she is a New Yorker through and through. And as the saying goes, once a New Yorker, always a New Yorker. Just ask the recently transplanted artist-nurse-pirate.

"I moved out to Colorado from Manhattan in 1982," said Judy – who, by the way, is not related to former Southold Town Supervisor Jean Cochran – over coffee at Rudy's Coffee Bar in Mattituck. "And twenty years later, here I am. Colorado is wonderful but they have this rugged individualist thing going on and I'm the let's-get-together-and-work-it-out type. I had been thinking strongly about returning to my roots and then POW! 9/11 happened. I was donating my collages to the Red Cross for fundraising purposes and it wasn't working. So I sold my house and left."

Besides working with wedding planners and others – Judy creates visual, single-page scrapbooks of events – she is reaching out to the 9/11 victims' families through her work. "People's first reaction to the word collage is usually, 'Oh, that's what my kids do.' But mine are about memorializing an event. In the case of the 9/11 victims' families, I am trying to reach them all and have them send me photos of the lost loved one and a list of their favorite things. I then make a collage and give it to the family as a keepsake. It's my way of helping the families heal." In addition to this huge project, Judy has also had an exhibit of her collages locally since arriving in January and hopes to get involved with more galleries.

In her twenty-two years as a psychiatric nurse – her other career – Judy saw a lot of heartbreak as well as joy. "After I started to lean a little, I decided it was time to move on," she said with characteristic humor. "When they made the change from non-profit to profit hospitals, things really went downhill. For nurses who just wanted to get by, it was great. But for those of us who really strived toward excellence and cared about the patients, it was too painful."

Judy, who has had a beautiful head of snow white hair since she was twenty-five – "I've had hairdressers chase me down the streets of Manhattan, asking me for a strand of my hair to copy" – embraces life in a big way. And out in Colorado where "Columbine happened outside my window," she worked within the juvenile justice system and found it lacking.

"I want to help redirect kids to healthier goals and give them things that they have to earn. There's way too much mollycoddling these days." Judy tried what were considered very controversial techniques with kids in the juvenile jail – where kids ranged in age from eleven to eighteen. "These were really heavy duty gang kids who were always in the news for killing people. So I brought in Super Soakers, you know, those really big water guns, and I would 'shoot' them! Really hose them down. And you'd think they'd want to slit my throat, right? They loved it. I played with them like kids and they'd say, 'Hey, nurse! Are you gonna shoot me? You gotta shoot me!' 'No,' someone else would say, 'She's gotta shoot me first!' This was controversial because we weren't supposed to bring anything in like guns and I thought, 'Hey! Let's get some water balloons and really have some fun with these kids. They were so young and it was very sad. I just tried to loosen them up and then I'd bring them into my office, alone, and they would let loose and cry."

How did Judy end up in Orient? "I looked in East Hampton at first and then Cook Pony Farm found this great little cottage in Orient. A real doll house." Judy lives there with her beau, Alan, and cocker spaniel, Dudley. "Alan's from Canarsie and he was homesick, too. In Colorado, there's almost no Jewish community and we both really missed that." When asked how she's enjoying Orient, Judy replies that she loves the country and also the ability to get into Manhattan on a regular basis. "This is a real Brigadoon. Everybody riding bicycles and waving. I love it." So does Dudley, who's having a great time discovering waves. "We're used to water that just runs in a stream. This water actually comes after him and it tastes funny!"

Another of Judy's pursuits is screenwriting, even though her Writer's Guild of America agent told her for years that she was an awful writer. "So I really worked at it" said Judy. Finally, when she sent her agent a very complex sci-fi script about serial killers, based on Ted Bundy, the reaction was very positive. Having worked with a lot of serial killers as a nurse, Judy was uniquely positioned to write about them. "I understand what goes on in the brain. I was doing a night shift when Bundy was executed. In Colorado, you'll remember, he had killed a bunch of people and so the TV stations were doing a countdown the night of the execution. And when he died they showed a brown hearse driving away at 7:15 in the morning and, suddenly, I got this awful feeling that he wasn't really dead. That was the basis for the screenplay. My agent loved it. She said she couldn't put it down and thought it was absolutely terrifying."

Artist, nurse and... pirate? "All my friends know what a swashbuckler I am. They say, 'You were born to be a pirate queen.' I even know how to fence." The Bounty arrives in Greenport in June and Judy is writing a screenplay for the town's Maritime Pirates. "We're going to film it on video and then shop it over to A&E and see if we can get money to shoot it for real."

Judy's ultimate ambition? "I tried to get funding to start my own non-profit organization but that didn't work. So I'm going to earn the money myself, by writing screenplays and selling my artwork. I'm a nurturer. I just want to help wherever I can."

Judy Cochran is the proprietor of Collages by Judy based in Orient. She can be reached by calling 631-323-1423 or by writing to P.O. Box 625, Orient, New York, 11957.

Let The Bidding Begin

Last Saturday, artists, potential bidders and twenty-one Long Island wineries participated in the kick-off party for the second annual silent auction held at Castello di Borghese/Hargrave Vineyard in anticipation of the 12th Annual Windows on Long Island. And, among the fourteen East End artists generously donating their work is none other than our own extraordinarily talented editor-in-chief, Dan Rattiner, with his cartoon entry, "Winning by a Finger."

Chairman of the events committee, Ann Marie Borghese, has once again worked tirelessly to make the auction a success, and it shows.

"People raved about Liz Duerschmidt's watercolor of a red Chevy pickup truck," said Ann Marie. "It is significant because it is her response to 9/11 and one of the beneficiaries is the Windows of Hope Family Relief Fund." Earth Pledge Foundation, a Manhattan-based organization dedicated to promoting sustainable agriculture, is the charitable recipient and is working closely with the Long Island Wine Council to make this event a success.

After leaving Borghese on April 14, the silent auction will travel to Vintage NY, a wine shop specializing in the wines of New York on Broome Street in Soho, where bids will be accepted April 16 through 27. Then, on Monday, April 29, guests attending the Windows on Long Island gala at Guastavino's restaurant will taste award-winning wines from all participating wineries and sample cuisine from twenty-three top New York and East End restaurants. On Saturday, many of the participating wineries poured their best and brightest at Borghese on Saturday, and Marco and Ann Marie poured, among other wines, its 2000 Barrel Fermented Chardonnay. Ann Marie said that the wine, which won a bronze medal at the 2002 Grand Harvest Awards Wine Competition held in February in Santa Rosa, California, has shown very well at tastings and winemakers' dinners. Though one judge voted to give the wine a silver medal, the combined judging resulted in a bronze, still quite an achievement for a Long Island wine in a California wine competition.

"This is the first wine we have released that was done totally under our stewardship. We are extremely pleased by the reception this wine has received," said Ann Marie. It also features the first of our new labels that not only update, but bring a new look to the region's 'founding vineyard.'"

"It was an exciting event to renew a style of wine that had not been produced at the vineyard for some time," said Marco Borghese. "Its great success has been very satisfying."

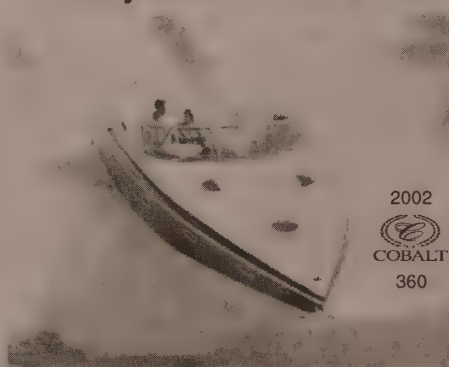

The Chardonnay, aged for 12 months in new French oak – a treat during these days of somewhat relentless stainless steel aging – is creamy and fairly light-bodied with aromas of pear and vanilla.

"The spectacular growing season made this outstanding Chardonnay a classic," said winemaker Mark Terry. "It's a beautiful wine with soft tannins and well-balanced acidity."

During dinner recently at La Cuveé Wine Bar and French Bistro at the recently renovated Greenporter Hotel, we were delighted to see that they continue to offer many, many wines, local and distant, by the glass. I also enjoyed my first – but definitely not last – glass of Pugliese's 2000 Late Harvest Riesling. Skip dessert and try this. The luscious fruit is right up front and the honeysuckle nose is a delight. Cheers.

theatre review: the odd couple

Law Tarello and Thomas Farnan illuminate the stage as a crazy couple in the Vision Theatre's production of The Odd Couple. Modern twists give fresh breath to this old fashioned tale of living with your opposite. Starring Tarello as the messy but big-hearted, Oscar Madison and Farnan as the overly efficient and neat Felix Unger this production is not to be missed.

The chemistry between Tarello and Farnan is so fantastic that the other actors seem to feed from their terrific energy. In the stereotypical group of poker buddies, Billy Carpentier is Vinnie, a nervous guy who has to get home to his wife for their trip to Florida, Gene Durney is Roy, who is so irrational and easily upset that I was waiting for him to have a heart attack on stage. James Macaluso is Murray, a fatherly cop with a very hungry wife, and Stu Ruttan is Speed, a real man's man. Composing the very funny and sometimes-neurotic poker night scenes, these guys provide tons of comic relief through witty dialogue.

The supporting cast features two highly convincing female actresses, Marlana Morrell and Maggie Creviston, who play the Pigeon sisters, Gwendolyn and Cecily. These girls have the best fake English accents I have seen in a long time. They appear midway through the play and help reduce the high testosterone level by adding just the right amount of femininity and sensitivity to their scenes.

Even though there are no scene changes this show is never visually boring. One of the characters is always jumping around and flailing his arms. Some of the visual jokes are more effective than the language, but the dialogue is what really keeps the audience on the edge of their seats. Congratulations to director Kate Fabrizio on another wonderful show. The Odd Couple runs from Friday and Saturday evenings at 8 pm through April 27.

The Vision Theatre offers exciting productions in an intimate setting. CLASSIC CARS BY BOB GELBER

VW

It's hard to describe the first impressions that the original Volkswagen Bug had on a lot of car enthusiasts, myself included. First you have to go back to the early fifties. All cars built in America were, compared to the Volkswagen, large, heavy machines. There were many great American cars of this period, but I guess that part of the Volkswagen's success is that it was just so different.

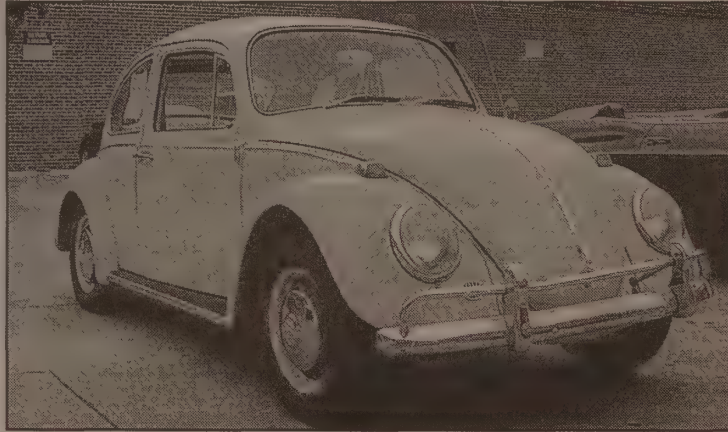

It was rather weird looking, almost like a space capsule from the Buck Rogers movie serials being shown on TV at the time. It was also very small, most noticeably in width. Also, sitting in the front seats, the windshield almost touched your nose. Your head was actually so close to the windshield, that on a cold day, you had to be careful not to breathe too hard, because your breath would fog up the glass and obscure forward vision! The Volkswagen had the absolutely worst car heater ever designed by mankind. On a cold day, a Vespa motorscooter produced more heat!

Of course what made the car unique was the placement of the engine and transmission. They were mounted in the rear, which meant all the weight was in the back. This was great for traction in the snow, for which the Beetle excelled, but it was handling in the dry that left a lot to be desired.

It was often said that the Volkswagen was so slow that it was hard to get into trouble with one. Baloney. Truth be told, you could just as easily be killed at 30 mph as 70. Especially if you hit that close windshield. Note: Nobody wore seatbelts then. The rear weight bias combined with a swing axle rear suspension made the Volkswagen jack up from the rear when taking hard corners or hard braking. Combine this with early tire designs, which by today's standards, were suicidal, and you've got a quirky handling automobile at your fingertips.

As terribly as the car handled, it must be remembered that all cars then, handled badly. One certainly could even hear it running.

So when this funny little Volkswagen burst upon the scene, it not only looked funky, but also sounded strange. Its air cooled engine made weird noises, its suspension nodded and bowed all over the highway and it even had a horn that sounded as though it was engineered by a Tinker Toy designer.

Undeniably, it filled a vacuum in the world of automobiles. America had never seen a small, fun to drive, weirdly practical and inexpensive automobile. The '50s and '60s Volkswagens cost about $1,600, considered a bargain at the time. Compared to other imported cars of the period, the Volkswagen was also beautifully built, with build quality that way exceeded its price. This was its true claim to fame. The Volkswagen was a good example of, basically, a poor design, beautifully executed.

And yet car enthusiasts loved this car. Myself included. Maybe it was its quirks that endeared it to us. Affordability and dependability were certainly part of it. Perhaps the fact that it was so different made a statement. The ad agency, Doyle Dane Bernbach, certainly took advantage of the car's uniqueness and produced some of the most unique automotive advertising ever seen.

Why did this car become the biggest selling automobile of all time? It was cramped, ugly and handled like a wet bar of soap. But it was fun in a period when cars were considered appliances. Let's also not forget that car enthusiasts bought Volkswagens because in the deep recesses of their mind, they were driving the humble parent of a car that was just starting to appear on the world's race circuits. This Beetle look-alike was shaped by the wind and car enthusiasts whispered to each other about its merits. It was the future. It was called Porsche.

ART COMMENTARY

With Marion Wolberg Weiss

"THE GENUINE ARTICLE" AT PARRISH ART MUSEUM

This is the kind of show that yours truly clearly adores: employing art as a tool for education. The Parrish Museum has had a continuing commitment to this goal over the years, collaborating with Southampton High School in seven different exhibits.

"The Genuine Article: Studies in Object-Based Learning" is unique and, therefore, the most substantial and rewarding, going beyond a specific theme, period or style. The show deals with the very notion of art's definition and how meaning is discerned. Exhibits that possess a cognitive thrust often miss the mark, but this one doesn't.

The mere thought of contending with such an exhibit seems daunting and the risks are abundant. Yet the student-curators and adult professionals like John Turnbull (Southampton Public Schools) and Cara Conklin-Wingfield (Parrish's Education Department) bring it off.

How they have accomplished this project will always remain a mystery to this critic.

However, there's another compelling reason why this show is especially relevant. While our job is to create interest, a critic also serves as a facilitator so that people can appreciate art's signification (and significance). Put simply, this exhibit establishes guidelines or tools, helping both critics and viewers alike to understand art's meaning and how such meaning is produced.

Connection between the artist and his/her subject matter is one key to the understanding of art. This is a particularly salient approach, and Richard Avedon's photographic portrait is a good example where meaning is attributed by Avedon's disdain for members of the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR). Naturally, connection can also be ascribed between the viewer and the art piece, but this concept is not pursued. Fairfield Porter's painting of his wife, Anne, is another effective connection where the conception/execution of the work is influenced by his relationship to the subject.

Observation is a useful tool as well, especially in abstract art where meaning is often elusive. ("Looking Labs" have been set up allowing viewers to absorb various works in this regard.)

Context is perhaps the most important signifying factor in social/political pieces (some contextual issues have been relegated to meaning, which may be a misplacement). However, while Red Groom's fire engine makes a striking work, we can't grasp its context (and, therefore, its meaning).

An artist's purpose also determines meaning, although some examples address formal qualities of material and process and not intention. Lastly, form serves as an effective way to establish connotation – being most significant in the visual arts where aesthetics alone create their own meaning.

"The Genuine Article: Studies in Object - Based Learning" will be on view at Southampton's Parrish Museum until May 12.

HONORING THE ARTIST: RANDY DUNHAM

When asked what single factor motivated him to paint, Randy Dunham replied, "The desire to explore where no one has gone before."

An appropriate answer for someone whose work resembles the future, as this week's cover makes clear. Mr. Dunham's geometric abstractions seem to derive from other worlds, even suggesting equipment that may have been left behind by NASA on some distant planet. His art is both "hard-edged" and surrealistic.

Mr. Dunham talks about surrealism as another key motivating force: "My surrealistic style deals with composition of simple inanimate objects of nature, including creations by God and inventions by man. It would appear that there are no living things throughout the surreal landscape yet there is life in the form of movement and varying perspectives."

Regardless of this signature style, Mr. Dunham's art has changed over the years: "It has developed from simple designs and pastel colors toward a greater and more complex design with strong bright color. I am continually looking for new ideas and avenues of expression for a new painting form."

Despite stylistic changes, Mr. Dunham's love of science has remained constant, with this interest also serving as an inspiration: "Science was my favorite subject in high school; I was enrolled in an applied art and medical lab at the Rochester Institute of Technology. I was able to use scientific principles in my work. For example, the movement

BON MOTS AND CHOCOLATE BONBONS... OKAY BUT, CHOCOLATE COVERED BOOBS ON LTV LOCAL BOOB TUBES?

Jane Austin definitely did not inspire this film by Heather Buchanan. Sag Harbor resident is an all 'round smart young woman, having written, produced, directed and starred in On the Rocks that is deliciously (everyone loves chocolate) wacky, hazardously hilarious and as disarming as the topless Venus de Milo. Ms. Buchanan's cheerful tale of woe covers the all-but-lost weekend of two close women friends who suddenly find their lives dashed On the Rocks. What better way to survive and keep afloat, than to drown their sorrows with quarts of colorful cocktails whilst cast away in the Bridgehampton dunes in a snazzy beach house. Unable to face the outside world they moan, they groan, they bicker, they snicker, but, always with a concluding laugh and a rum-soaked truism. The sniggers, the complaints, the wit-stained put-downs and up-hill cranking of an unjust world continue along with the drinks even as a bit of help enters their sequestered world. They somehow manage without toilet paper and feminine hygiene. Cleverly, they order in some eats from the

On The Rocks

Sagg General Store – with extra napkins. Then some handymen arrive en scene and so, to the banter and cocktails and carping and cocktails, fashion shows and cocktails... oh, yes, I think there's some coffee – and, add to that carnal lust. For you yokels, that's sex with local repairmen.

On the Rocks was done entirely out here, and it was done very well. Ms. Buchanan has lived elsewhere but, Sag Harbor is home now with roots extending down to Potato Road in Sagaponack and very likely far and wide. She will go a long way, but I hope not as far as in her movie. I don't know.

Heather seems like such a nice young woman. Is this somewhat, raunchy but, always funny and wise movie really hers?

Something else! Are the dynamic duo, who are on the rocky road to total disaster and doom, really locals?

It all begins with mascara-streaming-down the cheeks phone calls. Lily, a popular soap opera actress, finds herself dumped from the show without future prospects. Bebe, who lives uncomfortably with family wealth in Greenwich, Manhattan and their summer beach house, finds she's been left high and dry by her husband. He took off with his secret boyfriend. Bebe's mother knew it all the time. Bebe and Lily, ready to end it all, Jinney out to the East End where their misadventures, included starring in a public access TV cooking show with novel notions that Martha Stewart would not dream of, like overcharging the grill with explosive results, encrusting their breasts with chocolate to make interesting dessert cups and discussing sex with "Girl Guides" is misguided as is their attempted Thelma and Louise' fiery finale. Be there to see how it all ends!

Come to see movies with a college education! There will be refreshments, but, the most refreshing elements will be the movie and its writer/director, Heather Buchanan, to discuss her film with us. We're in a big hall... reservations not needed.

Saturday April 13 at 2 p.m. at Southampton College's Duke Lecture Hall (The New Building at Main Parking Area). Refreshments served, admission FREE. Hosted by Guy-Jean de Fraumeni, assisted by Sarah Halsey.

Guy-Jean de Fraumeni is the producer/ writer/ director of award winning European and American feature films. He has been a judge at major Film and TV award competitions, including the Oscars, the Emmy's and various film festivals. He is assisted by Sarah Halsey.

of objects breaks the law of gravity. I also was influenced by studies of reflection, transparency and transformation."

Mr. Dunham has had other professional experiences besides those associated with art and science, however. They have also motivated him, no doubt, perhaps in indirect ways.

"I left Rochester Institute of Technology after three years to start a property business. In 1985 I sold my first business to start a picture framing and art shop in Rochester. After a time (I had a wife and growing family by then) I realized I was not happy as a picture framer.

"I did my first drawing in years, in 1994 as a doodle with my two older sons. I knew then that I wanted to paint again. Since December, 2000, art has been my full-time occupation."

Now that Mr. Dunham is finally on his chosen path, where does he think that path will take him in the next ten years? He answers without hesitation. "I would like to have my work hung in science research lab centers someday."

It's apparent that art and science will continue to inspire Mr. Dunham for years to come.

—Marion Wolberg Weiss

Mr. Dunham will be showing his art at the Westhampton Art Show in the first weekend of August.

SOUTHAMPTON COLLEGE PROUDLY PRESENTS THE DAN'S PAPERS THEY MADE THE MOVIE HERE FILM FESTIVAL

Featuring films that either take place on Long Island or were filmed here.

Saturday April 13 - ON THE ROCKS

A comedy of coffee, cocktails and carnal lust as a cure for two socialites headaches of rejection. The background for all the lovely screwball action is, naturally, the gorgeous Hampton's... the home of the film's producer, director and star, Heather Buchanan.

Saturday April 20 - WHISPERS IN THE DARK

Murders more than wicked! They are rife with psychopathia sexualis, bondage, sadism and explicit nudity... all strung out with chills and thrills. The kinky doings include (would you believe?) nice guy Alan Alda and his extra nice town, Water Mill. Movie starting at 2:30.

Saturday April 27 - EVERYONE SAYS I LOVE YOU

Gotta' have a Woody Allen (Hamptons-on-film enthusiast) selection. This is his tuneful tribute to 1940 musicals with a dreamy-team cast of loving couples. Julia Roberts and Woody, Drew Barrymore and Edward Norton; Goldie Hawn and Alan Alda make off-key love, trouble and music as they sing their way through places like New York City, Venice and Southampton.

Saturday May 4 - THE FAN

Film and stage legend, Lauren Bacall's most controversial film. As a Broadway star stalked by an extremely psychotic admirer, Ms. Bacall exhibits both her dramatic and musical talents. Featured are James Garner and Maureen Stapleton and the Hamptons. Movie starting at 2:30.

Saturday May 11 - SHE'S THE ONE

Long Island's own triple-threat film maker, Edward Burn's follow-up of his winning, The Brothers McMullen, delivers more of his sage wit, funny and serious situations and winning performances by Jennifer Aniston, Cameron Diaz and naturally, himself and The Island.

Saturday May 18 - Closed for Graduation

Saturday May 25 - GREY GARDENS

Back by popular demand, this somewhat shocking documentary remains compellingly poetic and touching. It captures a bit of the later years of Edith Bouvier Beale and her daughter, Edie (aunt and cousin of Jacqueline Onassis) filmed in their decaying, overgrown mansion in East Hampton. A hauntingly memorable experience.

ENTERTAINMENT IN THE HAMPTONS (AND BEYOND)

theatre review: the graduate.....by barry gordin

KATHLEEN TURNER BARES ALL

The Graduate opened last week at The Plymouth Theatre in New York City. The new comedy is directed by British playwright Terry Johnson, who has adapted the script from the original novel by Charles Webb and from the 1967 screenplay written by Calder Willingham and Buck Henry and directed by Mike Nichols. It stars Kathleen Turner, Jason Biggs (of American Pie fame) and Alicia Silverstone (star of Clueless and Batman and Robin). Despite all the hype and the presence of the stars, this new Broadway version largely disappoints. Granted the original movie is such an American classic that expectations run high and comparisons are inevitable, but nothing really gels. Movies transformed into successful plays are not the norm; so why bother to re-create a classic except for the pure sensationalism of doing it? Or in this case, titillation? Maybe it could simply be the money.

The play does have its moments, but mere moments do not make a play. The story of a college graduate being seduced by a jaded woman twice his age (who just happens to be a friend of his family) and who falls helplessly in love with her daughter was a revelation in 1967, but today seems pointless. The play only serves to point out the genius of the original Mike Nichols film. The film conveyed everything with an economy of style and action, which is clearly lacking in the current production. Much has been added, but nothing adds up. This Graduate is not sure if it wants to be a soap opera, romantic comedy or farce, but meaningful drama it is not.

The real reason to see "The Graduate" is Kathleen Turner. Ever since Ms. Turner burst onto the scene in the 1981 film Body Heat she has been a star and her star quality remains undiminished. Anyone who has ever seen her on the stage can attest that she has a commanding presence and it is because of her presence that theatergoers have forked over a cool $ 5.3 million in advance ticket sales (the largest pre-opening advance for a play in Broadway history).

What's not to like about Kathleen Turner? Nothing, absolutely nothing. She is after all a star, who dares you not to look at her and she alone does not disappoint. There she is with her gorgeous gams and her beautiful statuesque body, her flowing blond hair, her penetrating eyes, her smoky husky voice and now we get full frontal nudity and her fabulous breasts thrown in for good measure. Ms. Turner makes this Mrs. Robinson her own and is great fun to watch. However, her angry tone makes the character somewhat unattractive. What she shows for Benjamin is not necessarily desire. Ms. Turner comes across as a task master putting her charge through his paces and as entertaining as she is, even she cannot erase in our minds the cool elegance of Anne Bancroft.

Mr. Biggs has some funny moments, but they never seem connected to a character. His scenes with Ms. Turner have a one dimensional quality to them and quickly become boring. I found it difficult to care about these people. There is no duality. Not for an instant do we see the vulnerability beneath the surface.

Alicia Silverstone, who plays Elaine the Robinsons' daughter, is cute and funny on film, but on the Broadway stage even though she looks pretty her voice comes across sort of annoyingly squeaky and somewhat shrill. The effect makes it difficult to fathom just why Benjamin is so taken with her. Her scenes with Mr. Biggs lack any emotional depth rendering them ultimately bland.

As game as the actors are and try they do, they are forever undercut by the monotonous tone of the dialogue and direction. I am sorry to say that, aside from Ms. Turner's presence and Rob Howell's minimalist set, The Graduate is tired and pointless. What the play is about

I am not really sure, but then again there is the clang of the cash register.

Kathleen Turner as Mrs. Robinson

theatre review: the lion in winter.....by jessica romm

A Lion in Winter is perhaps best known as the 1968 film with Katharine Hepburn, Anthony Hopkins and Peter O'Toole, directed masterfully by Anthony Harvey. The film was awarded the Oscar for best screenplay and Katharine Hepburn won best actress for her performance as Queen Eleanor of Aquitaine. Set in medieval times, the story is the twelfth century's version of Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? The film is a movie buff's classic, glistening with strong dialogue and modern themes. Those that remember even further back, can recall that the screenplay was actually adapted for the screen by James Goldman, who was also the original writer of the Broadway production of A Lion in Winter.

And thus the story of King Henry, Queen Eleanor and their sons has come to the stage at Southampton College. The script and the power of the dialogue made it an ideal candidate for the 2002 spring production of the Southampton Players. It is an extremely difficult play, an example of challenging theater that is so enjoyable that you become lost in the characters. You become lost in their struggles and one can easily forget that the setting is 1183 and the story tells the tale of the clash between heirs over lands and arranged marriages. But its truths, that every family has its struggles during the holidays (and as real life tells us – the royal family of England is no different), are so biting and so real that you cannot help but care for these characters and understand their emotions.

The three sons: Richard, the warrior/eldest, Geoffrey, the smartest/middle child and John the manipulated/youngest contest for the crown.

The delivery of these difficult lines, is made even more so by the added layer of the humor and dark wit throughout the dialogue. The players at Southampton balanced the dramatics and the humor of A Lion in Winter well and, as expressed by the matriarch and patriarch, is central in holding the story together. Portraying Henry II, King of England is Ken McGuire and M.H. Washington is Queen Eleanor; the two fill the shoes and deliver both sides of their characters well. The humor and the drama are importantly equalized.

Scarlett Arbuckle, Ken McGuire

The play is set at Christmas time in the South of France. King Henry calls his wife Eleanor out of exile for the holiday because there are important decisions to be made. Henry will announce his heir to the throne, marry his mistress off to one of his sons and reclaim the Aquitaine land from France. Eleanor is weary from her exile. Her love for Henry, as mighty as the material things that make the king powerful, is unrelenting and Eleanor's wise ways give her power despite her captivity. M.H. Washington delivers the wit and wisdom of Eleanor, which I could not help but compare to the performance of Katharine Hepburn in the screen adaptation. She loves her husband unconditionally. She was once beautiful and has been discarded by her husband for a younger princess. M.H. Washington is funny, with a Stockard Channing quality that I was trying to pinpoint for the entire play. She delivers her lines quickly – almost deadpan. She is very much the queen who had once been handed everything she wanted – and now struggles with the things that she wants the most.

And as Eleanor so wittily points out, "Well, what family doesn't have its ups and downs."

And ups and downs it does.

Of course the setting of the play must be much simpler than the film. Each scene is set in a different chamber and signals a shift in the balance in power. And throughout the changes, the pawn, the beautiful young French Princess, Alais, is passed around. The scene seems decisive and then, the one that follows erases everything that had been decided prior. It is the strength of James Goldman's dialogue that connects each of the scenes seamlessly.

So many poignant lines from this play stuck with me long after the performance ended. Words so weighty, powerful and modern that the themes of the play become timeless. And if the performance at Southampton may be a bit muddled from time to time, it does have its moments of clarity. When the characters act as a family the bonds between them are stronger than words.

A Lion in Winter ends this weekend; with performances Fri-Sat at 8 p.m. and Sun at 6 p.m. Tickets are $15/$10 for students and seniors. Also don't miss: On Monday Oscar-nominated director Anthony Harvey will present the film A Lion in Winter at Southampton College at 6 p.m. in Duke Lecture Hall.

ROOM FOR MORE PANIC THAN NEEDED

Panic Room a Panic? Pu-lease! There's pu-lenty of Panic! So much Panic, you'll PLOTZ! Plausible plot! No. Predictable plot? Sure. Puny plot? Sure. But, the Panic Room is in a plot of Manhattan real estate, a town house, so humongous its purchase price would straighten Donald Trump's poofy, blow-dried hair. If you can afford a house that size, you must need a panic room – a sort of bomb shelter – a sealed, self-contained vault of steel, complete with a bank of about twelve TV monitors (also available in other rooms) that enable surveillance of the house. The wonder of this gadgetry puts the swirl back into the Donald's hair.

About to rattle around in this edifice (and zip around on a scooter) is a pretty, passive (it seems) pampering mom, played by that pretty prodigious, Jodie Foster and her petulant, pre-teen know-it-all, daughter, zipping around (for a short while) is Kristin Stewart. Daddy is wealthy but unfaithful and living, now, close by with his Tootsie. Anxious to move into their new home they arrive early, not knowing that their terrific, safe, panic room houses a safe containing millions of dollars, wanted by some very bad guys. So, there they are Home Alone on their very first night, when the thieves come calling. Mother and daughter will have the spunk and inventiveness of Macaulay Culkin but, NONE of the FUN. Bu-lieve me! This is no cartoony comedy (though there are some funny moments), it is wall-to-wall suspense and violence, most unfortunately a lot of it is perpetrated on the magnificent house! We Hamptonites are real estate oriented and these movie makers really know how to hurt us.

The reason why Panic Room works so well, momentarily, is the penetrating, imaginative visual style of the director, David Fincher, who gave freshness to another worn theme in 1995's, Seven and to a daring (if unrealized) film, Fight Club. Here, in Panic Room, his persuasive direction, especially of an extremely, fluid drive camera that moves throughout the house as smoothly and as penetratingly as the currents of an awesomely expensive duct system (which of course, befits the envious, 4,200-square foot, architectural nightmare-of-a-dream house. However, Jodi Foster doesn't need the real estate of a camera with fancy footwork. She really needs a sure-footed script.

Is there panic in Death to Smoochy? Duh? I'll say! Danny DeVito's movie is suffocated by it. Sheer, numbing desperate panic, mostly given to and, expressed by Robin Williams. No, he isn't a panic: he's anticy, manicky, over-the-top panicky, in a movie crudely wrought to be grossly cruel and meant to demolish, of all things, a dinosaur – the purple foam rubber and terry-cloth costumed, public television cash-cow, adored by the entire under-ten population and hated by everyone over the age of twenty-eight (if they still bother to think of it) and who does? Who cares? There are too many truly worthy fossil targets for destruction. I love Danny, but this movie is the real dinosaur – hide-bound and mean-spiritedly clumsy. It uses thunderous ugly guns to bring down a crotch that barely requires a pea-shooter.

It just seems right to welcome the long-awaited spring warmth with sweet and light desserts. I have often voiced my claim of not having a sweet tooth, yet I appreciate a fine homemade dessert when the occasion rises.

Over years of culinary study and travel I have filled my files to the brim with cakes and tortes and pies and tarts. Some recipes are inspirations from years ago that have stood the test of time. They have scratchy hand written notes all over the typewritten pages. Giuliano Bugialli's Torta di Mandorle (almond torte) is a flat cake that is baked in a round pizza pan. Its cookie-like, crunchy texture is softened here with a dollop of mango puree. French orange pound cake has been one of my all time favorite pound cakes. The original version is decorated with orange slices that are poached in sugar syrup then adhered to the sides of the cake with a syrupy coating. For ambitious bakers - go for it. You just need to prepare simple syrup (sugar and water) and poach thin slices of sweet orange until they are well coated. Or you can simplify the glaze by softening orange marmalade with water in a saucepan to brush over the cake. The natural sweetness of mascarpone, a rich and delicious solidified cream from Lombardy, Italy, is flavored with lime zest and juice to top a colorful fruit salad with mascarpone cream.

A special meal should end with a sense of celebration and an exciting taste sensation.

FRUIT SALAD WITH MASCARPONE CREAM

A colorful and simple dessert to assemble with a mascarpone topping. Serve over slices of buttery store-bought pound cake if desired.
Serves 8-10

5 cups mixed berries and freshly cut-up assorted fruits, such as strawberries, blackberries, raspberries, kiwis, bananas, etc.

Mascarpone cream:

1/2 cup heavy cream, chilled
2 tablespoons sugar
Freshly grated lime zest
4 tablespoons fresh lime juice (1 large lime)
1/2 pound mascarpone cheese

1. Rinse and pat fruits dry with paper towel except raspberries, kiwi and banana, if using. Whatever combination of fruits you use, prepare them up to several hours before serving or early in the day. Refrigerate covered; bring to room temperature before serving.

2. Prepare the mascarpone cream: With electric beaters, beat heavy cream in a cold bowl gradually adding sugar until firm peaks form. Fold in lime zest and juice.

3. In a separate bowl whip the mascarpone with a wooden spoon then fold into the whipped cream mixture, blending well. Can be prepared ahead and refrigerated in a suitable container.

4. To serve, divide berries into dessert dishes and top each with a healthy dollop of the mascarpone cream. Or, spoon berries over slices of pound cake and top with the mascarpone cream.

ALMOND TORTE WITH MANGO PUREE

An adaptation of Giuliano Bugialli's Torta di Mandorle=
Serves 8

For the Torte:

1 cup whole almonds, blanched, peeled and toasted
1/4 pound unsalted butter, melted
4 extra-large eggs, separated
1 cup unbleached all-purpose flour
Grated peel of 1 lemon
1/8 teaspoon cinnamon

For the mango puree:

1 large ripe mango
1 tablespoon dark rum
2 teaspoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon water
1 1/4 tablespoons honey

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Butter an 8-inch round baking pan.

1. Blanch the almonds for 1 minute in boiling water and drain in a colander. Slip off their skins then toast them in preheated oven for 4-5 minutes until lightly golden. Place half the almonds in bowl of food processor and process to a fine grind. Reserve whole almonds.

2. Beat eggs in a bowl and add the sugar. Stir with a wooden spoon until the sugar is completely incorporated and the egg yolks are a pale yellow color. Gradually add the cooled melted butter mixing thoroughly. Add the flour, stirring continuously until mixture is homogenous. Stir in the ground almonds and mix well. Then add the whole almonds. Grated lemon peel and cinnamon and mix until thoroughly incorporated.

3. Beat egg whites in bowl of electric mixer until firm but not dry peaks form. Gently fold into the almond mixture. Spread out in prepared baking pan and bake for 25-30 minutes. Unmold cake and cut into wedges. Serve with mango puree.

4. Cut mango in half against the pit. Turn each shell inside out to expose the flesh and with sharp paring knife cut flesh into a criss-cross pattern. Scoop fruit into bowl of food processor with knife blade. Process to puree. Add remaining ingredients and process to a creamy sauce.

FRENCH ORANGE POUND CAKE

Makes 10-12 servings

For the cake:

1 cup unsalted butter
1 cup sugar
3 large eggs, separated
1 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/4 teaspoon baking soda
Grated rind of 1 orange
Grated rind of 1 lemon
1/2 cup orange juice
1 tablespoon lemon juice

For the glaze:

1/2 cup orange marmalade
2 tablespoons water

Adjust rack one-third up from bottom of oven. Preheat oven to 350 degrees.

1 Butter a 6-cup mold, such as kugelhopf, charlotte or loaf pan. Dust with flour or fine bread crumbs to coat.

2. In bowl of electric mixer, cream butter and sugar together until light and fluffy. If butter should stick to the paddle, scrape off with a rubber spatula. Add egg yolks, one at a time, beating well after each addition, scraping sides with a rubber spatula as necessary. Continue to beat for 2-3 minutes longer until mixture is smooth.

3. Meanwhile, sift the flour, baking powder and soda onto a square of wax paper. At lowest speed alternately add sifted dry ingredients in three additions and the combined juices in two additions, continuing to scrape bowl as necessary and beating only until smooth after each addition. Add orange and lemon rind and stir to mix.

4. In a clean bowl, beat the egg whites until they hold a firm shape and fold one-fourth of the whites into the batter to soften the mixture. Carefully fold in remaining whites. Remove from mixer and turn into prepared cake pan. Level top by moving pan back and forth briskly.

5. Bake 1 hour or until cake tester comes out clean. Cool cake in pan for 15-20 minutes. Unmold.

6. Mix marmalade and water in a small saucepan. Bring to a boil. Brush over top and sides of cake. Let stand several hours to set the glaze. Transfer to a cake plate for serving.

Dining in The Hamptons

Among a sea of Hamptons restaurants, the struggle to differentiate yourself from your neighbors is the key to survival. This need manifests itself by restaurants recruiting chefs from all over the world, hailing from different culinary backgrounds with hopes to spike their cuisine with qualities that will be deemed unique and special. And they try to attract a crowd that will fill their seats even in the off season.

75 Main in Southampton has been around the block for a few seasons and they have learned what it takes to continually reinvent themselves. Besides delivering upscale New-American fare, they have attempted to create interesting feature nights and diverse menu specials to keep things lively. Leading this team of innovation is Chef Steven Biscari-Amaral.

Situated right in the center of Main Street, the location is ideal. Anyone who has walked by 75 Main on a bustling night in the summer when the place is packed to the ceiling fans knows exactly what I am talking about. On any given night, you'll see devoted fans from the Southampton old guard, groovy couples out for a good time and young singles sitting at the bar enjoying the restaurant's delicious libations.

75 Main is a large expansive space. The front of the restaurant is covered in glass paneled doors that slide open for bistro style dining. Although on the night we walked in the front door, it was 20 degrees and windy, it was easy to picture the scene in the summer months, with the doors open and diners and drinkers sitting at the front tables enjoying their central vantage point. The décor is classic Hamptons with a long wooden bar running down the front half of the restaurant.

The new chef at 75 Main promises a lot for the upcoming season. After spending time in Hawaii, Biscari-Amaral brought his experience with pacific cuisine to the East End and tackled the menu at 75

Main. On Fridays, in addition to the a la carte menu, he offers a sushi tasting menu. The diner is offered three courses at the price of $24.95. To accompany the menu there is also a small selection of sakes and Japanese beer. Last Friday, both of us opted for the sushi tasting menu – and we did not leave unhappy.

The first course is an ample bowl of miso soup, with a full-flavored broth speckled with tofu and scallions. The balance of flavors was perfect. (Sometimes miso soup can be too salty or too murky and you're not really sure what you are getting.) The broth was clear, robust in taste and nicely stewed with the tofu. The combination was pleasing and the soup was welcomed by both of us on that cold evening.

The next course was a large green salad crowned with Asian vegetables. The dressing was an appropriately light ginger-lemon dressing. The flavor of the salad was subtle overall and it was too large to finish and would have been better suited for an appetizer portion with an a la carte entrée. In retrospect (considering the feast that would soon be presented to us) one salad could have been shared for the table.

Our mood was jovial, the sake was flowing like water and the center bar was beginning to fill up with weekend well wishers. The friendly staff was doing everything to ensure a good time was had by all.

The main course of sushi, was enough to fill any serious sushi connoisseur's desire and was presented artfully by our waiter. The entrée selections included a beautiful

Displaying his Hawaiian influences, we were treated to wonderful specialty nigiri and maki rolls; a Shrimp Tempura roll, a Hawaiian Rainbow roll and a Tiger Eye Roll graced our table top and you could see the artful side of the main man at 75 Main.

HEALTH & BEAUTY

Dr. Microchip

It may only be a few years away. A doctor will log onto his computer in the morning and rather than hearing the ubiquitous "You've got mail," he'll hear, "Your patient, David Smith, has a mild arrhythmia." That notification will be enabled by the microchip implanted in Mr. Smith that employs wireless technology and sends a signal with his current condition to his doctor, who will be able to monitor his patients' health remotely.

It sounds like science fiction and there are some eerie undertones of Big Brother rumbling in the background, but the technology to create such a system exists and clinical trials are currently underway. Researchers are testing a host of implantable devices that will allow doctors to treat their patients remotely, more efficiently and effectively. An implantable microsensor – a micro-electro mechanical system device (MEMS) – can send information to a hand-held device outside the body; the Medtronic measures a patient's heart condition and sends information to doctors via the web; high-speed internet connections are allowing for surgery conducted by specialists an ocean away from the patient receiving the procedure; patients can consult with specialists via video conferencing and high-speed web connections. No more costly CAT scans or exploratory surgery – so much for the waiting room.

The potential applications of such technology verge on limitless and the continued development of these devices promises an even greater range of uses. Patients in remote areas could have these devices implanted and forgo difficult and unnecessary trips to the doctor. A patient with an aneurysm could have his blood pressure in organs or in a blood clot area monitored. A patient, wishing to receive a procedure from the foremost expert in the world could have the surgery performed remotely. These technologies are currently being developed and tested and a comprehensive implementation is years away, but the current state of these devices suggests great things for future healthcare.

CardioMEMS, an Atlanta-based company founded by Mark Allen, David Stern and Dr. Jay Yadav, has developed a chip that can be used to monitor blood pressure levels in organs, blood clots of patients of with heart failure and abdominal aortic aneurysms. Conventional monitoring of such conditions requires costly CAT scans. The buildup of pressure in an aneurysm is very difficult to detect, so this device would be a revolutionary leap forward in the treatment of such conditions. MEMS technology is currently being tested in dogs with great success and human trials are planned.

Long distance surgery has already been put into practice; surgeons in New York removed the gallbladder of a woman in France last September. Using high-speed telecommunications and sophisticated surgical robots the operation, performed at a distance of 4,000 miles, was deemed a complete success. The technology that allowed for the surgery was fiber optic cable that transmitted the surgeons' movements in New York to the robots in France with a mere 150-millisecond delay, not even noticeable to the human eye. Real time video was also made possible by fiber optics and allowed the surgeon to see exactly what he was doing as the surgery progressed. This type of procedure may herald a time when specialists in one country or across America can perform a surgery on a patient thousands of miles away.

The potential healthcare benefit that these technologies will provide is staggering. It is estimated that 98,000 deaths occur each year because doctors do not have enough information to treat their patients. Chip implants that hold a patient's medical records, their current status and information about what has gone wrong are just over the horizon. We can look forward to a future in which doctors' visits are as simple as a scan, your surgeon lives in Switzerland and diagnosis begins in front of the home computer.

Hair Straightening And Turning Heads

Like most women, I'm a sucker for anything that makes my hair look straighter than it really is. My shower is crowded with shampoos, balms and conditioners all boasting non-frizzy, sleek and smooth hair. After all these solutions are applied, the next half hour is spent drying my hair with a round brush until my scalp hurts and my eyes water. Sometimes, after all this, I'll further straighten my hair with an iron. Thankfully, there's a way to bypass this process using heat and natural oils.

One of the most popular of these thermal reconditioning processes is called the Yuko System. The system, invented in Japan in 1996, uses shark oil and a specially developed iron heated to 356 degrees. The hair's protein bonds are cut, allowing the hair to be easily reshaped. Once the hair cells are straightened, the heated iron uses steam to seal in the hair's moisture and shine, while rebuilding the bonds. Yuko claims to be safe for all hair types, including color-treated hair and that the process can be reversed to regain curl. The hair types with the most to gain from the straightening experience are those with strong, coarse hair. Yuko has a salon in Los Angeles, but many New York salons offer the treatment due to its soaring popularity.

The new trend has caught the attention of many celebrities. Chelsea Clinton recently appeared at a Versace launch in Paris without her signature ringlets, and Gwyneth Paltrow, who attended the Versace show with Chelsea, is also said to have had her hair straightened. Other well-known thermal reconditioning clientele are Halle Berry and Vanessa Williams.

The process can cost up to $300 and takes three to four and a half hours, but hair is frizz-free for up to six months. A similar process is offered at Sebastian's Hair Salon in East Hampton (324-3036), using a scissor-like piece of equipment with irons. The owner, Pasquale, says his stylists have been offering it for a few years, but feels it will soon be as widely offered on the East End as it is in New York City. The treatment's longevity depends on the texture of the hair, but two to four weeks is the estimated length of time for smooth hair. Sebastian's offers the process for $110.

With this new technology, women can live in peace and fear unexpected rain and wind. We can laugh in the faces of fly-aways and hurl our round brushes into the Atlantic.

Gettin' Slim At The New Sag Harbor Gym

Sag Harbor has a new reason to get fit by the summer. The Sag Harbor Gym finally opened this week and it is brand spanking new and fabulous. With a mix of new high tech equipment, a cutting edge group of staff and trainers and a great waterfront location, The Sag Harbor Gym is going to be this season's place to be. The location adjacent to the harbor, which formerly housed The American Fitness Factory, has water views and is directly across from the health food market Provisions.

The space got a complete face-lift during the renovation. The high ceilings and glass roof give the expansive space a bright and clean glow. The all-white cardio room looks out onto Bay Street and has a wall of brand-new televisions with each machine sporting an earphone jack to tune into your station of choice.

That is if you are not satisfied with musical selection piping throughout the gym. They have equipped the cardio room with all-new treadmills, elliptical trainers, bikes, rowing machines and steppers.

One of the biggest pluses is going to be the training and class schedule. Headed up by Roseanne, the gym has big plans for its premier season. The two aerobics studios have been refinished and painted and they both look out onto the harbor. Classes will start up next week. The offerings will include Body Sculpt, Kickboxing and two types of yoga, stretching and step. A separate spin studio, with brand new bikes will offer spin classes throughout the week.

The In Balance Pilates Studio is a tenant inside the gym and they offer private, semi-private and group lessons and mat classes. Lesa Salvani and her staff combine 30 years of experience, passed down from the master Joseph Pilates and she truly understands the importance of stretching and resistance training paired with cardiovascular exercise. Along with her staff, Lesa is excited about beginning the summer mat classes and lessons. Call her at 631-725-8282. The combination of the two resources in one building is the best combination in the area for total fitness.

For weekend warriors, the gym offers a $20 guest fee to use the gym for the day. The locker rooms have been totally redone with four spacious showers in each, a sauna room (the paint was still wet), long benches and rows of lockers. Seeing everything so new and sparkling, inspired a great workout and the buzz in the air along with the lively conversation of members appears proof of the opening's success.

The gym is open Mon-Fri from 6 a.m. to 9:30 p.m., Sat from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Sun from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Call them at 631-725-0707 and ask for Bruce Cotter who help you figure out the right membership to suit your workout plans. The gym is located at #2 Fithian Lane, Sag Harbor.

It's Board Games, Not Bored Games

Board games have been around since the days of ancient Rome, when Julius was the only Caesar. All across the empire, Romans would get together and sit down for a game of dice, chess, checkers, backgammon or tic-tac-toe in one form or another. The Egyptians and Greeks played board games, too. Archeologists have found pieces of Tabula and Senet, the predecessors to backgammon, that date back as far as 3000 BC.

In many ways, board games have not changed a great deal since Roman times. Everywhere in the world, people still sit down to play a simple game of chess, backgammon or cribbage over coffee. Mostly, though, the popular board games, new and classic, have little resemblance to the ancient ones. Monopoly, Risk, Clue, Scrabble, Trivial Pursuit and Cranium: if it were not for the dice, you would never know there was any relation, even if they still have the same basic idea— to own, defeat, expose, outspell or outsmart your opponent.

A board game can be either a simple way for friends to have fun on a rainy day, or a necessary distraction from the mind-numbing effects of televisions and computers. They can also be a healthy means for which a family can get together and spend some "quality" time. Board games are not just for children either. Risk, Clue and Monopoly are just as entertaining for adults as they are for children. Since their respective releases in 1959, 1949 and 1935, Risk, Clue and Monopoly have been among the most popular games ever played, even if they do tend to go on a bit long. Jerry Seinfeld dedicated a whole episode of his TV show to a game of Risk. Movies have been made on or about Clue. And over 200 million games of Monopoly have been sold around the world since its introduction almost 70 years ago.

Board games in general have changed very little over the years, though recently, they have begun a new series of sudden transformations. There are still the games that are great for adults, those that are great for children and those that are good for both, either separate or together, just with new twists and attractions. Clue, Monopoly and Risk, for example, are all three found in all sorts of new variations and themes. The Simpsons, Scooby Doo and Alfred Hitchcock have their own Clue scenarios, with new weapons, new rooms and each new character representing an original one, or vice versa. So was it Bart Simpson as Professor Plum who killed Mr. Burns with the poisoned donut in the Kwik-E-Mart? Or was it Mr. Green as Mother from Psycho who killed Mr. Boddy with the Necktie on the Torch of the Statue of Liberty?

Monopoly can be found in about thirty new categories, with new themes available ranging from baseball teams, comic books, cars, historic cities, soft drinks and famous movies to dot-coms and college teams. Now you can buy the Kwik-E-Mart, the Powerplant, the Yankees, the powers of Superman or the enemies of Spiderman. And you can play Risk like it was the year 2210, where you can rule underwater cities and moon territories.

If it is a straight up trivia you want, there is still nothing better than Trivial Pursuit. How many different versions of Trivial Pursuit are there now anyway? There will always be the original Genus edition. Now there is Genus IV, Genus V, Biographies, Eighties and a new cutthroat version as well. In Trivial Pursuit In Pursuit, each player is vying for control of a partnership, so even though everyone is teamed from the start, you can switch partners anytime. It makes strategy just as important as trivia knowledge.

Also, for adults who just want to hang out at home, are Pictionary, Taboo and Cranium, where to win, you really have to know your partner well. In Pictionary, you get to draw the word given to you so your partner can guess what it is. Taboo lets you give hints about the word, as long as you don't say any of the given words — that would make it too easy. And Cranium is the new popular game you can find in any Starbucks that combines Trivial Pursuit and Pictionary, with a whole new level added that involves sculpting. In Cranium, you can answer a multiple choice question, draw with your eyes open or closed, or sculpt a clay model of a word for your teammate.

Board games are great for children because they help expand and promote their imaginations, while teaching them how to work inside a system of rules. Again there are the classic games, like Chutes and Ladders, Sorry!, Trouble and Candy Land. Now, in the name of popular literature, however, there is also Harry Potter, Lord of the Rings and Green Eggs and Ham so your kids can play Quidditch with Harry, explore Middle Earth like a Hobbit or just rhyme with Dr. Seuss.

Zen:

Bob George has been called "Mother Nature's Art Director" by his clients. This is no idle moniker and for over twenty-years he has been creating gardens and landscapes based on intuition and the sounds he hears the earth make. There is something about standing in a well-designed garden, a certain harmony that incorporates landscape and nature that produces balance and beauty.

Bob has his roots in the Hudson Valley and Woodstock areas and, now, the Hamptons. He does creative, natural stone masonry and exquisite landscape and garden designs and installations. He works within an environment and shapes an area within an aesthetic framework, rather than trying to make a space conform to a preconceived plan.

Recently he has been working with a new concept called "Zen Zone" that creates a tranquillity center built into the earth using warm stones and cool waters, which adds a welcome space for relaxation and escape. For information call 631-324-9204 log onto www.thatslandscaping.com.

Organic:

Joining with The Nature Conservancy's South Fork and Shelter Island Chapter, Marders will create an all-native organic garden at the chapter's East Hampton headquarters, the Kaplan House. Kathleen and Charles Marder have long supported the Conservancy and are more than happy to assist with such at large-scale landscape project. The garden will house a large variety of the East End's native plants species. The company is donating plants, materials and labor to the project.

Marders was chosen to participate in this project because of its experience with organic landscaping. They changed to natural and organic processes two years ago in their landscaping, retail and maintenance business to protect the health of their employees, customers and the environment.

"We're all about creating beauty from the ground up," said Charles "And that starts with what you put into it. In this case, it was holding organics up to the highest standards." The Kaplan House garden is a way that The Nature Conservancy can show how it restores the native plant species that play a critical role not only in Long Island's wild landscapes but also in our local environments. The Kaplan House is located on Snake Hollow Rd. in Bridgehampton. For more information on this project call Maureen Purzell at (631) 537-5000.

Either/Or

Impress your friends with your exquisite taste while adding a dramatic flair to your home with this stunning 15th century suit of armor. Crafted by designer Geuseppe Acaria in Gubbio Italy, it was created using the same medieval smithing methods that were used in the 15th century to create the originals. The ironsmith hammers each piece out on a wooden stump and then hand finishes it on a steel anvil. Bring history into your home with this authentic full size replica that comes complete with full plate war harness and a jolly red plume.

Assembly is required. The suit is held together by hand placed steel rivets and leather straps. This allows you change the positions of the arms and legs or to raise the helmet's double visor. Also included is a sword bracket so you can position your own weapon or you can purchase one when you selecting your armor. Whether you want a sword or a spear your suit of armor will look great armed with either option. Standing at over six and a half feet tall atop a hardwood base this suit commands attention.

Not only is the suit a great decorative piece but it will surely spark many a conversation. There are few things that can be such creative pieces for the home – how many of your friends have a suit of armor? – and it can add a touch of mystery to an entrance way or living room. Plus the kids will love it and they are sure to make up some great stories for their friends about it. The only thing to worry about is, those late night trips to the bathroom or the fridge when you see a dark figure standing in the hall and it scares you.

This beauty can be ordered at www.skymall.com or from the Design Toscano catalogue. Allow 4-6 weeks for delivery because no rush shipping is available. The 15th century suit of armor can be yours for the low price of $2,450.

Or maybe you want to spend more time outdoors on your new backyard putting green. Installing 188 square feet of SoftTrack synthetic grass system now costs only $2,450. SoftTrack is easy to care for and if properly maintained can last up to fifteen years or more. It will resist rain, snow, ice and sun, and is easier to maintain than bent grass.

Installation of a short game or putting green depends on the amount of preparation, cleanup needed and the accessibility of your yard. Most projects can be completed in a week, but during the busy season a waiting list may be in effect. Ponds, waterfalls, retaining walls and plants take longer to install.

The size of your project depends on how large your yard is and what your needs are. Do you want to practice chipping and putting, bunker shots, pitch shots or a three-par hole? Minimum size limitations vary by company. Most greens cost between $13 and $18 per square foot depending on project size and required clean up.

Lower your handicap, impress your friends and neighbors, and even become the top golfer at the club by practicing on your backyard green. You could teach your children to become the next Tiger Woods or work on that shot that you can never sink. Having your own green allows you to practice as long as you want with out rushing because there are people behind you and without waiting for the people in front of you.

The SoftTrack system begins with compacted dirt then two layers of compacted crushed stone and then the final layer is silica fill sand, top dressing sand and synthetic fibers. This system's impact absorption mirrors the bouncing characteristics of real grass. Call your local landscaper or golf specialist for more details.

Raise your property value and lower your handicap all at the same time with your own backyard putting green. Or add drama and history to your home with a 15th century suit of armor. Pick up either for a mere $2,450.

POLICE BLOTTER

Reduce, reuse, recycle and rethink buying one of those security alarms that most people have to protect their belongings. The East Hampton Town Recycling Center was robbed of a $100 cash box containing the same. The culprit entered the facility by breaking a window on the night of March 25.

Another Saab story hit the news last week when the Springs Fire Department responded to a Fanning Avenue residence. The owner called 911 when he discovered his Saab sedan on fire. There was no one in the car at the time it isn't known how the fire started.

Sucks to be you. An East Hampton woman reported to police for the second time in three weeks that someone had siphoned gas from her truck. Her Ford Explorer was parked in front of her house on the night it was taken advantage of.

East End police departments had quite a time keeping tabs on all the juvenile crime this week. An eighteen-year-old Southampton girl was arrested last Sunday after she tried to hit another girl with a chair while they were fighting. Locals hope to see the bout on Fox this weekend. Some youngsters got into it at the East Quogue 7-Eleven last week. The fight involved two 17-year-old boys, one the ex-boyfriend and the other a present boyfriend of the same girl (yawn). One of the boys told police that the other boy drove up to the 7-Eleven brandishing a silver pellet gun. Police confiscated the firearm but couldn't decipher if the gun was actually involved in the confrontation. Police were called again to the New Moon Café in East Quogue when it was discovered that a 19-year-old boy lifted three cases of beer from the unlocked refrigerator last Friday.

Thank goodness these children will someday grow up and mature into bright college students. This is not the case for a 21-year-old Southampton College student who was arrested after entering a dorm room and attacking another student. During the scuffle items in the room, including the door, were damaged. He was charged with third-degree assault and criminal mischief.

What do you do when your sister has more comfortable furniture than you and the next Ikea sale isn't for another three months? Kick down the door and make yourself at home! That's just what a 44-year-old Riverhead woman decided to do at her sister's Hampton Bays home last Sunday. After the sister asked her to leave and she refused, police were called to assist. Still the woman didn't want to leave, she was charged with criminal trespass, resisting arrest and obstructing governmental administration after she struggled with police.

Another incident in Hampton Bays resulted in the arrest of a 45-year-old man who police apprehended at the United Artist Movie Theater. Apparently he was traveling at 60 miles per hour north on Springville Road, a 30 mile per hour zone, when he almost hit a car traveling in the other direction. He then failed to stop when police turned their overhead lights on, but soon came to a halt when he hit a curb behind the theater.

Folks, if you don't agree with the service, just go to another restaurant! A Springs couple called police the morning after they had an argument with the manager of an East Hampton Village restaurant last Friday night. Due to the presence of Easter, the restaurant was not running its usual special menu. This apparently angered the patron and his wife enough to get loud with the manager, and ultimately tell police the next day. This incident raises a very important question – Is it a crime to raise the price of stewed cabbage?

Dan's LETTERS

DAMN TRAFFIC VS. HA HA HA

Dear Dan,

I am an art teacher at West Hempstead High School in Nassau County. When a due date approaches for a project, I like to walk around the classroom saying, "The End Is Near." On the actual due date I say, "The End Is Here." This has become a running joke in all my classes.

I was reading your paper at a friend's house on Shelter Island when this cartoon came to me.

Memorial Day and the start of the summer rush and crush will soon be upon us. Perhaps someone stuck in traffic will think of this and have a laugh.

ACCESS DENIED BY FRENCH

Dear Dan,

Re: Beach Closed (Not)

I reside in Hither Woods since 1972 and always could walk to the beach by a path from the Montauk Highway. I was originally advised the path was used by the Montaukett Indians for centuries.

On or about Jan 20, 1999, the entrance to the path was blocked with a sign "No Trespassing -E. French." (The path is across from the home of Arnold Mandel on the Montauk Highway – about on quarter mile east of Gurney's.)

Is there any right to preserve this access?

Roy Weiss
Montauk

Some accesses have to be preserved, some not. Depends on the deed.

THE GREAT BIG GREEN POWER MACHINE

Dear Dan,

Everybody talks about green energy, but nobody's doing anything about it. The Bald Eagle Power Company, a renewable energy provider, is planning on developing major offshore wind farms in the Long Island area. And Long Island users can help make that happen!

On April 20, at the Earthfest Celebration sponsored by Southampton College, BEPC will offer Long Islanders the opportunity to sign Green Power Reservations now at a fixed rate of seven cents per kilowatt-hour for a period of ten years. There is no risk or cost for Long Islanders to make this commitment to green power.

When our wind farm goes online in 2005, our plan is to offer our green energy through LIPA's Choice Program at the fixed rate of seven cents per kilowatt-hour for ten years.

Dr. Jay Gould, founder of the STAR Foundation, is the first Long Islander to enthusiastically embrace this program. He will be speaking about reserving offshore wind energy at the Earthfest Celebration at noon.

Help us end high energy prices and polluting fossil fuels by carrying the banner for Green Power Reservations so that clean renewable energy can become a reality on Long Island and not just something people talk about.

I've attached a copy of our Green Power Reserve Application. I hope you can stop by during the Earthfest on the 20th, from 10 a.m. on through the day, to learn more about the Bald Eagle Power Company.

DAN AT THE HEAD OF THE CLASS, AGAIN

Dear Dan,

My name is Richard Muller and I'm a sixth grade teacher at the Albert Prodell Middle School in Shoreham, New York. I grew up in Southampton. I now live in Shoreham and am married to Gisela and have two boys, Sean (9) and Liam (3). I work weekends and summers at The Fox Hill Golf Club as a starter and Pro shop staff. We have a great owner, Barry Biel, who is also a partner at Hampton Hills. If you ever need a golf game you have an open invitation to come play anytime over the summer.

The real reason that prompted me to write to you is to in some way to say thanks. Thanks for providing a great newspaper that is about the best place on earth that I know. Thanks for all the material from your newspaper that I use for my creative writing class. The stories are always entertaining. Most of all thanks for speaking in my junior English class in 1971(?). My teacher was Stanley Luce, who, after I brought in a copy of The Hobbit, made the whole class read it because he thought it was a cool story. In some ways you were an inspiration as I remember you talking about a stay you had in a hotel in Mexico. I would love to find the time to ask you to come in and talk to my class someday.

I will always be a reader and supporter of your paper and I wish you continued success. On Monday morning I will start my class again by saying, "I read this great story in Dan's PaperS this weekend...."

Sincerely,
Richard Muller

BEAUTY YES, BUT PEOPLE ARE BEST

Dear Dan,

Jason Noble is from Bridgehampton where he graduated from B.H.S. as Salutatorian in 1993. He attended Hampshire College for two years and then left to travel and write. He had recently settled in Tucson to work and finish school.

In December of 2000 Jason was that was struck by an uninsured truck driver going through a yield sign at 55 mph in a 35 mph speed zone. Jason suffered a broken neck, broken ribs, head trauma and lacerations, torn shoulder, punctured lung and a spinal cord injury leaving him paralyzed from the sternum down. (Paraplegic).

Since his accident he has worked hard in therapy and counseling to pick up the pieces of his life. As of now he tells us he is ready to go on and meet the challenges that life brings. Though he will never walk again his spirit is strong, his wit sharp and his smile brilliant.

Jason and his girlfriend Amanda Rodriguez (from Sag Harbor) are living in Tucson to be in close proximity to his doctors and hospital. Due to the fact that his medical insurance and disability payments are minimum a lot of his needs cannot be met. Such things as: exercise equipment, therapies and counseling, hand-controlled vehicle, college and computer equipment are financially out of reach.

He wishes to thank everyone who has helped him to get this far and we, his parents, wish to thank the East End community for all their love and support. We live in a very special place because of its beauty, yes, but mostly because of its wonderful people.

Thank you.
Phil and Paddy Noble

WATERFIELD

Financial Corporation

In 1928, Richard Waterfield thought nothing of getting in his car and driving 160 miles (each way) to hand deliver the paperwork to ensure a fast closing on a home loan. Making sure that a client could purchase a home quickly and easily was just his way of doing business. Today, this same philosophy separates Waterfield from other mortgage companies.

We believe, as many small businesses do, that each individual deserves our complete attention and commitment. Unlike other big lenders who make you wait through the days of red tape, our front line people can make quick decisions right in the field. Our dedication to customer satisfaction has enabled us to expand nationwide, despite the ever-changing real estate market. Because of our growth, we now have the resources of a large corporation. Waterfield is the largest privately-held mortgage company in the country with offices nationwide. This stability means that we will remain in the market to honor terms and service mortgage payment for years to come.

Since 1928, Waterfield has specialized in mortgage lending. Our team has the resources and expertise to provide for the best service possible, throughout each step of the process. Our high level of customer satisfaction from time of application through closing and into loan servicing has enabled us to become the oldest and largest privately-held mortgage banking firm in the United States.
